

THE CHRONICLE

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1990

DUKE UNIVERSITY DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

CIRCULATION: 15,000 VOL. 85, NO. 108

Playboy bares 'Girls of the ACC' issue

Brodie wants presidents' meeting

By JAMIE O'BRIEN

Playboy Magazine's April "Girls of the ACC" issue, which hits newsstands today, has prompted President Keith Brodie to call a meeting of all of the presidents of Atlantic Coast Conference schools to discuss the edition. The April issue features three University students.

According to Dave Roberson, director of Duke News Service, the meeting will be held during the Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) basketball tournament on March 9, 10 and 11.

Brodie could not be reached for comment Monday.

Neither Roberson nor Eugene Corrigan, commissioner of the ACC, said they know what specifically will be discussed at the meeting, but Corrigan said he would be there as well.

Corrigan said he could think of no legal actions the ACC or any of the member schools could take against Playboy.

Corrigan said he does not approve of the "Girls of the ACC" feature.

"I have not seen the magazine and I do not intend to see it," he said. "I don't do Playboy."

The "Girls of the ACC" issue is part of a series of issues that Playboy uses to focus on NCAA Division I colleges and coinciding with football and basketball seasons. The ACC was last featured in the fall of 1983.

The current issue features photos of 36 women from each of the eight ACC schools in clothed, semi-nude, and nude poses.

Models from the University were Trinity junior Arden Clark and Trinity sophomores Krisanta Lasko and Karen Green.

Lasko and Green were both photographed clothed, and Clark was featured nude. Clark said she went to the original interviews out of curiosity, and partly as a reaction against negative attitudes expressed on campus about the interviews.

"I didn't feel Playboy was a bad magazine. I read Playboy," she said. "I didn't feel people should be telling other people not to pose."

The photography session was very professional, Clark said. "It was fun, but it felt like work. [The photographers] had done this a hundred times."

"I had originally said I would agree to be topless, but I ended up not wearing any clothes," she said, adding that she was paid

See PLAYBOY on page 13

The April issue of Playboy, featuring the "Girls of the ACC."

Nicaragua votes out Sandinistas

By MARK UHLIG

N.Y. Times News Service

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leader of Nicaragua's opposition coalition crushed President Daniel Ortega Saavedra in national elections here on Sunday, apparently bringing an end to 10 turbulent years of Sandinista rule.

The landslide victory by the opposition candidate, Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, turned the closely monitored elections into a powerful repudiation of one of Latin America's most prominent and fiercely debated revolutionary governments.

Celebrating her victory early on Monday after the results were made public, Chamorro said: "We have shown the world an example of civic duty, demonstrating that we Nicaraguans want to live in democracy, want to live in peace and, above all, that we want to live in liberty."

Ortega, looking subdued as the results became known, said: "The president of Nicaragua and the government of Nicaragua are going to respect and obey the popular mandate coming out of the vote in these elections."

Despite Chamorro's victory, and Ortega's seeming acquiescence in defeat, there remains skepticism that Ortega, a lifelong guerrilla and politician, will be able to persuade the Sandinista Front to accept a Chamorro government. Chamorro is scheduled to be inaugurated on April 25.

The vote prepares the ground for the first democratic transfer of power that this country has known, a turnover that parallels to some degree the changes in Eastern Europe, where communism has little by little

See NICARAGUA on page 6

Committee finds 'gap' in campus race relations

By LIZA RODRIGUEZ

A committee studying race relations on campus has found that a "wide communication and perception gap" exists between black and white students.

A majority of black students have not experienced discrimination in the classroom, however, according to the committee's report.

The President's Committee on Discrimination in the Classroom, initiated last spring by President Keith Brodie in response to student and faculty concern, conducted a survey by mailing questionnaires to all 498 black students in all University schools and to random samples of white (411 students), Hispanic (65), and Asian (50) students. Of the students who returned the surveys, 124 were black, 158 white, 22 Hispanic and 21 Asian.

Two thirds of the black respondents (67 percent) had not seen or experienced prejudice or negative behavior by white faculty members. In addition, 66.1 percent of the black students said they would choose Duke again if given a chance to rethink their college decision.

However, 10.5 percent of black students said they saw a general pattern of lower expectations by faculty members, and 4 percent said that they were aware of incidents of lower grading. 3.2 percent indicated that there existed a pattern of lower grading on blacks.

Eric Dozier, Black Student Alliance (BSA) president, stated that the general reaction of the BSA is "very positive to the efforts of the Administration in adressing this problem. It is a step on the right direction toward making people realize that there is a problem with racial discrimination on this campus."

The report indicated differing views of race relations among white students and black students. While 16.5 percent of the white students indicated that "Race relations at Duke are generally cordial and free of discrimination," only 1.6 percent of blacks agreed.

On the other hand, 66.9 per-

See REPORT on page 14

Hundreds line up for shots; clinics try to restock serum

By VIJI RANGASWAMI

The Pickens and Durham County health centers have been flooded with University students and Durham residents concerned over possible exposure to the contagious hepatitis A virus.

After finding that an Erwin Road Pizza Hut employee had contracted hepatitis A earlier, county health officials recommended this weekend that anyone who had eaten in the Pizza Hut, or had eaten food from the pick-up and carry-out service between Feb. 13 through Feb. 20, receive an immunization of Immuno-Globulin.

The immunization is most effective in preventing a hepatitis A infection during the two weeks immediately following exposure to the virus. It is not effective after those two weeks have elapsed, according to Dr. Howard Eisenson, director of student health.

University students covered by the student health fee and University employees can obtain the vaccinations at Pickens for free. See SHOTS on page 14

CLIFF BURNS / THE CHRONICLE

Students lined up in Pickens Health Center Monday to get immunized for the hepatitis A virus.

Inside

Analysis: The commies are outta here in one more corner of the globe. And there's no shortage of opinion makers on the matter, including professors, ministers and even a grad student. See page 6.

Weather

Its getting warmer! Just kidding, highs Tuesday in the 50's with some sun here and there lows in the 30's. Same temps for Wednesday but more clouds.

World & National

Newsfile

Associated Press

Sandinistas ousted: Nicaraguans fed up with war and poverty and liberated by a secret ballot lashed out bitterly to put an end to more than 10 years of Sandinista rule.

Officials celebrate: Former U.S. officials who helped mount military and economic opposition to the Nicaraguan government celebrated the defeat of Daniel Ortega on Monday but credited the courage of the Nicaraguan people as much as any U.S. efforts.

Red Army departs: A brass band struck up the "Internationale" on Monday as the Red Army began leaving Czechoslovakia 22 years after it arrived to crush a reform movement.

Draft law denounced: Legislators from the Baltics and other independent-minded republics denounced a draft law Monday that would let the Kremlin take over their governments by declaring a state of emergency.

East Germans apply: Several thousand East Germans applied Monday for the first benefits their government has ever given the unemployed, whose ranks may swell dramatically as the nation moves toward capitalism.

Noriega surprised: Manuel Antonio Noriega's top aides gave him "false reports" about the possibility of American military action.

Bush plans aid for new Nicaraguan government

By ROBERT PEAR
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Elated by the election results in Nicaragua, the Bush administration said Monday that it expected to lift a trade embargo imposed in 1985, provide economic aid and send an ambassador to Managua if Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, the president-elect, takes office as scheduled on April 25.

But the administration's satisfaction was tinged with doubts about whether President Daniel Ortega Saavedra would peacefully surrender power and especially his control over the Nicaraguan army and security agencies.

Ortega said Monday that he would "respect and obey the popular mandate."

But in the election campaign, Sandinista officials like Interior Minister Tomas Borge Martinez suggested that members of the military and security forces would resist orders from a Chamorro government.

The defeat of Ortega gave all sides in Washington an opportunity to rekindle one of the most divisive foreign policy debates of the last decade.

Conservatives lauded the results as a vindication of the Reagan administration's support for the Contra rebels.

Opponents of the Contras said the election proved the merits of negotiation rather than military action.

White House and State Department officials and members of Congress from both parties said they were delighted with the results, which President Bush described as "another victory" for democracy in a remarkable year of political change.

"Given a clear mandate for peace and democracy, there is no reason at all for further military activity from any quarter," Bush said in a comment widely read as a message to the Nicaraguan rebels, the focus of U.S. policy throughout the Reagan administration.

Ronald Reagan's ardent support for the Contras caused countless fights with Congress and led indirectly to the worst scandal of his administration, as White House officials sold arms to Iran and diverted the proceeds to the Nicaraguan guerrillas.

At the State Department, an official said that "people here are ecstatic about the outcome" of the Nicaraguan elections.

When Chamorro visited Bush at the White House on Nov. 8, he told her that "the United States would be ready to lift the trade embargo and assist in Nicaragua's reconstruction" if she won the election.

Marlin Fitzwater, the White House press secretary, said the administration

See BUSH on page 13 ►

Moslems ask for Rushdie trial

LONDON (AP) — British Moslems appealed to the High Court Monday to overrule a lower court and bring author Salman Rushdie and the publishers of his novel "The Satanic Verses" to trial under Britain's blasphemy law.

Ali Azhar, representing the British Moslem Action Front, argued before a three-judge panel that the blasphemy law protecting Christianity should be extended to protect Islam.

He told the court that "The Satanic Verses" contained many four-letter words and was abusive and insulting not only to Islam but also to Christianity and Judaism.

"The Holy Koran (Moslem book) deserves protection," he said.

The British Moslem Action Front is seeking a judicial review of a March 1989 refusal by the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Sir David Hopkin, to prosecute Rushdie and publishers Viking Penguin for "blasphemous libel and seditious libel under common law."

Hopkin had refused the plea on the grounds that the blasphemy laws applied only to the Christian religion.

High Court Judge Sir Michael Nolan said it was necessary to hear legal arguments and granted the right to challenge the decision in June.

Extra police and security guards were on duty Monday at the Law Courts although lawyers in the case said there was no need for Rushdie, who has been in hiding for more than a year, to appear in court.

The 42-year-old British author was forced into hiding in February 1989 when Iran's late spiritual leader, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, denounced "The Satanic Verses" as an insult to Islam and told Moslems to execute the author and those closely connected with the book's publication.

Havel and Gorbachev agree on faster troop withdrawal

By FRANCIS CLINES
N.Y. Times News Service

MOSCOW — The Czechoslovak president, Vaclav Havel, and the Soviet president, Mikhail Gorbachev, agreed on Monday on a faster timetable for the Soviet troop withdrawal from Czechoslovakia as well as on an end to cold war intelligence cooperation directed against Western nations.

The treaties were announced by the two governments as Havel, a playwright and outspoken anti-communist, sardonically commented that Czechoslovak railroad workers would see the Soviet troops to the border for nothing.

Under the timetable signed by Foreign Ministry officials from the two nations, all

73,500 Soviet troops are to be gone by July 1, 1991, 23 years after the Kremlin used a Warsaw Pact invasion to crush liberalization in Czechoslovakia. (The first Soviet troops and tanks have begun their pullout from Frenstat pod Radhostem and Krnov, on the Czechoslovak border with Poland, The Associated Press reported.)

"Mr. Gorbachev and I agreed that the best way to deal with the dark pages of our past is to look forward," the Czechoslovak leader said at a Monday evening news conference after private talks with the Soviet president.

Havel disclosed that he had pressed Gorbachev for a tighter deadline, seeking the withdrawal of the last of the five main Soviet combat divisions within a year from Monday. He said the Soviet leader did not rule that out if it proved feasible.

"I listened with understanding to the other side," Havel said, adding that Gorbachev was wary that the withdrawal period "should not be too short."

"There are internal political reasons for this," he declared, in a reference to Gorbachev's delicate position as he simultaneously deals with pressures to retract the Soviet military from Eastern Europe and to pacify domestic critics alarmed at his attempt to de-emphasize the Soviet Communist Party in national affairs.

Havel also said the two nations had signed a new treaty of cooperation between their security forces, in a further display that Czechoslovakia, renewed in its recent peaceful overthrow of communist dictatorship, is no longer a satellite.

"This is a treaty that is symmetrical and not directed against any third nation," he said, hailing the end of the cold war security treaty in which the Soviet and Czechoslovak intelligence networks worked jointly against the United States and other NATO nations.

The new agreement is limited to the standard anti-crime and anti-drug security cooperation of equal nations.

Havel, while gracious in his estimate of Gorbachev, made it clear that he was here to signal a new era of independence, an era later described in a joint statement as rooted in "equality and complete mutual respect for each other's state sovereignty."

Creative SERVICES MANAGER

At The Chronicle, we're looking for an individual with the ability to lead our student staff of graphic artists in the production of creative and effective advertisements and promotional materials.

The extensive responsibilities give the position its wide range of leadership and managerial roles, and the year-long position gives the manager the time to develop excellent skills, both technical and interpersonal.

The student manager interns in the newspaper during the summer and commits to 20-30 hours per week during the academic year.

Pick up an information packet and application in room 101 West Union Building, 9-5 p.m., Monday-Friday. Only rising juniors and seniors are eligible. Application deadline: Monday, March 5, noon

SATISFACTION
Restaurant and Bar
OPEN SUNDAY
for DUKE vs UNC
8 FOOT TV!

Ask about our new lunch special!
The Shoppes at Lakewood, Durham 493-7797

Aganbegyan: Perestroika can succeed if West helps out

By ADRIAN DOLLARD

Sitting comfortably at the wooden table in the large Fuqua board room, Mikhail Gorbachev's chief economic adviser came to the University to sing the praises of a joint venture between the Soviet Union and the Fuqua School of Business.

The imposing figure of Abel Aganbegyan spoke Friday in a raspy Russian accent. The main architect of perestroika, who had spent several years in Siberia developing his brand of reform economics far from the Kremlin walls, is now traveling abroad as a major spokesperson for the Soviet government.

Aganbegyan firmly believes perestroika can work, but not without help from countries experienced in Western business practices. So he is promoting joint ventures such as the Soviet management training program established at Fuqua.

Starting in July, the Fuqua School of Business, through its newly created Center for USSR Manager Development, will train Soviet managers in the hopes of integrating western management techniques into the Soviet economy.

Aganbegyan, rector of the Soviet Union's Academy of National Economy, stressed how important it is for Soviet "managers to have experience in foreign countries because the transition from a closed economy to an open one includes [involvement in] the world market."

The Soviet Union presently trains managers in Western countries such as West Germany, Italy, Finland and France, he said.

Aganbegyan characterized the Fuqua School of Business' training program as "unique" not only because it trains Soviet managers in "one of the best business schools" in the country, but also because the internship phase of the training program gives Soviets the experience of working with some of the "best American companies."

Aganbegyan stressed that the training program is a "two-way agreement" that also invites American professors, students and businessmen to study in the Soviet Union.

The Soviets enrolled in the training program are high-level Soviet managers or "CEO types" as Atlanta industrialist and University benefactor J.B. Fuqua called them. They tend to be graduate engineers.

J.B. Fuqua gave the business school $4 million to found the program as well as the brand new Center for USSR Manager Development.

Aganbegyan said the training program is part of the Soviet Union's larger effort to reform the Soviet economy by employing western market mechanisms. Today there is a "convergence of [capitalist and socialist] economies," he said.

As evidence of this, Aganbegyan cited the West's use of centralized planning as a means from recovering from the depression of the 1930s, as well as modern countries like Italy, France and Sweden that blend capitalism and socialism.

Capitalist and socialist countries now face, and will continue to face, "common economic problems." That fact makes educational programs like the business school's training program useful, he said.

The perestroika reforms will include "a transition to a market economy, autonomous enterprises, shareholding, development leasings and private property," he said.

Aganbegyan acknowledged there would be negative fallout, particularly inflation and unemployment, from the perestroika reforms. He continued that although it will be "difficult," the Soviet state can limit the negative tendencies of the open market by regulating "prices, interest rates, taxation and budgetary deficit."

Aganbegyan noted that the perestroika process will be a slow and dangerous one. "The people are not satisfied, and some political groups want to use the [dissatisfaction] for their purposes," he said.

Nevertheless, Aganbegyan expressed confidence the reforms will succeed where others have failed. Aganbegyan said Vladimir Lenin's New Economic Policy of 1920, Nikita Khrushchev's reforms between 1953 and 1956 and Alexei Kosygin's reform attempts between 1965 and 1970 were all "stopped for political reasons," despite some of the "good results" they achieved.

Aganbegyan pointed to political opposition to these changes as their downfall. Josef Stalin opposed and ended Lenin's reforms, while Leonid Brezhnev stopped Kosygin's efforts. In the past, "authoritarian power" has tended to "cut reforms" off, he added.

Aganbegyan also blamed past failures on the fact that in the past, "economic reforms didn't correspond to political reforms." Today the Soviet Union is committed to coupling economic reform with "democracy, pluralism and [free elections]," he said.

Aganbegyan admitted to some of the initial shortcomings of perestroika. "Non-competence in the economic field" on the part of the government was responsible for mistakes made in implementing reforms in 1987, he said. A tripling of the budget deficit, a poor wage growth rate and price increases were the principle problems of the economic crisis, he added.

Aganbegyan joked that many of those without economic educations who were responsible for initial reform failures had "gone to rest after the Supreme Soviet" session.

BIOGRAPHIES IN BLACK HISTORY

Augustus Tolton

On Easter Sunday in the year 1886, a black man offered Holy Mass on the High Altar at St. Peter's Basilica in Rome, Italy. As a rule only the Pope himself offers Mass over the tomb of St. Peter in this holy of holies of the Christian world. But this was no regular occasion. Instead, it was the Church's way of honoring the first full-blooded American Negro ever to be ordained for the priesthood.

Augustus Tolton, the priest, was from Quincy, Illinois and the road to Rome had not been easy.

The pomp and circumstances of St. Peter's was a stark contrast to the austere life which lay behind and before the twenty-seven year old priest who has been described as having the "vivid and striking likeness of a solid man, true as steel, without a shadow of pretension." Augustus Tolton was born in Ralls County, Missouri but had grown up in Quincy, Illinois where his mother had taken him after escaping from slavery. Before Augustus reached his teens, he was put to work in a tobacco factory where for twelve years he worked from sunrise to sunset.

Being a devout Catholic, Martha Tolton, his mother, saw that he attended mass and confession. His intelligence and piety quickly brought Augustus to the attention of the priests and bishops at St. Boniface's parish. They encouraged him in his studies and, when he was sure of his true vocation, helped to secure his admission to the College of Propaganda (De Propaganda Fide) at Rome in 1880. Brilliantly mastering the language and theological requirements, Augustus Tolton was ordained a priest on Holy Saturday, April 24, 1886.

Returning to Quincy, Illinois in the summer of 1886, the Reverend Father Augustus Tolton was made pastor of St. Joseph's Church for Negroes. St. Joseph's was an extremely small church and Father Tolton had time to tour the country. The newspapers made much of the fact that he was the first Negro priest in America, but he was more interested in service than in publicity. In 1889, a wealthy individual donated $10,000 for the establishment of St. Monica's Church for Negro Catholics in Chicago in the 2200 block of South Indianan Avenue. The doors of St. Monica opened in 1890 and for seven years Father Tolton went about his clerical duties, giving himself to his parishioners without reservation. The long years of work in his early youth, intense study and later service took their toll and the good Father Tolton died on July 10, 1897.

Source: Great Negroes Past and Present by Russell L. Adams

CLIFF BURNS / THE CHRONICLE

Just for kicks

Trinity senior Stuart Stern engages in a little foosball action in Stonehenge dormitory as part of an extended study break.

Correction

A page one story in Monday's paper incorrectly reported that the social sciences has experienced an increase in undergraduate majors due to increased funds allocated by the administration. In a report to the Board of Trustees Friday, President Keith Brodie said the humanities, specifically the English department, has seen a rise in majors, partly due to additional resources.

CONTACT LENS CLINIC

ON CAMPUS AT

Duke University Eye Center

Contact lens fittings and care for lens-related problems provided. All types of lenses available: extended wear, soft, astigmatic, pmma, gas permeable, cosmetic tints, disposable, bifocal.

Two follow-up visits and a care kit included with purchase of lens.

Call 684-2905 for appointment.

PATTISHALL'S GARAGE & RADIATOR SERVICE, INC.

Specializing in

- American Cars
- Dasher
- Datsun
- Volvo
- Rabbits
- Scirocco
- Toyota
- Honda

Auto Repairing & Service • Motor Tune-up
General Repairs • Wrecker Service

286-2207

1900 W. Markham Ave.
(located near Duke Campus)

YAMAZUSHI

JAPANESE CUISINE & SUSHI HOUSE

Experience the Triangle's favorite for lunch and dinner

Sushi, Tempura, and Teriyaki
Call for reservations

Woodcroft S/C
Rte. 24/101 at Ridge Valley Road
493-7748
Tu-F lunch 11:30-1:30
Tu-Th dinner 5:30-9:30
Fri & Sat 5:30-10:00
Sunday 5:30-9:00

RTP (Park Terrace S/C)
2223 Hwy. 96, Suite 140 East of Hwy. 96
544-7945
Mon-Sat lunch 11:30-2:00
Tu-Th dinner 5:30-9:00
Fri & Sat 5:30-9:30
Sunday 5:30-9:00

Arts

CALENDAR

Tuesday, February 27

Video screening by Martha Rosler
Video Screening Room, Bryan Center
7:30 p.m.

Video artist Martha Rosler will present and discuss two of her recent works exploring women's issues and mythology in everyday life. Rosler will remain at the University until March 1.

Wednesday, February 28

Choral Vespers Ensemble
Duke Chapel, 12:30 p.m.

Donna Sparks directs the ensemble in a special presentation for Ash Wednesday. The ensemble consists of 12 singers including undergraduates and faculty.

The ensemble will perform works by Palestrina, Schutz, Monteverdi, Morley, Wesley, Bai, Hassler and associate chapel organist David Arcus.

Trojan Women
Sheaffer Theater, 8 p.m.
Students $3, general admission $6

Duke Drama begins the second week of this presentation of the tragedy by Euripides. The show will run through Sunday.

An Earful of Lickings
209 East Duke Building, 8 p.m.
Students $3, general admission $6

The second week of Duke Drama's workshop production of artist-in-residence Yusef El Guindi's newest play begins tonight. The show will run through Sunday.

Thursday, March 1

Le Cirque de Temps
The Ark, 8 p.m.

Visiting artist Michael Rush and a company of local performers will present the world premiere of "Le Cirque de Temps," a piece developed by the performers during Rush's two-month visit.

Mallarme players rev up for 'Pierrot Lunaire'

By LEYA TSENG

The music ends, creating a moment of fidgety silence. Then, from the stage is heard an ice-breaking, random thought: "We have to go back and do [verse] six . . . I didn't come in at all . . . I had to wait so long!"

Violinist/violist Sylvia Arnett's statement was completely characteristic of the open and informal mood created in the East Duke Building's Nelson Music Room Monday night, as members of the Mallarme Chamber Players offered an open rehearsal of Arnold Schoenberg's "Pierrot Lunaire."

Also performing were Penelope Jensen, soprano; Fred Raimi, cello; Anna Wilson, flute/piccolo; Donald Oehler, clarinet/bass clarinet; and Barbara Rowan, piano.

Professor Bryan Gilliam of the Department of Music gave an introductory talk preceding the actual rehearsal of Schoenberg's chamber work. Gilliam spoke about the influences of the period under which "Pierrot Lunaire" was composed.

Schoenberg was "tradition-oriented" and "saw himself in the thick of an auspicious historic moment," Gilliam said.

"Pierrot Lunaire" is based on a collection of poems by Albert Giraud and is divided into consists of three parts, each consisting of seven poems.

Each part has a distinctly different flavor and mood. Part one is about the moon-struck clown Pierrot; part two is a dark and ominous portrait of guilt and punishment; and part three is about homesickness.

Gilliam described the piece as "text painting" and cited several examples in the work in which instrumentation and voice work together to create the image evoked by the words of the poem.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of this work is the freedom it gives to its performers. Each instrument is taxed to the limits of its range, dynamics and articulation. The instruments almost come to life with the contrasts and mood changes.

In addition to the versatility of the players and their instruments is the unusual use of Jensen's soprano. Rather than singing her lines, she chants them to precise rhythm and pitch in a fashion comparable to slow-motion opera.

In general the performers seemed to work well together. There were times when the group sounded truly in sync, but at times the instruments went into mass chaos and Jensen was completely overpowered. Both cases may have been appropriate considering the text, however.

Audience feedback worked its way into the show, as after the final part, Jensen asked if she could be heard. The audience responded with "More violin!" to which Arnett replied, "Really? They told me to shut up yesterday."

"Pierrot Lunaire" will run on March 20 at 8 p.m. at the Durham Arts Center.

Henderson jazzes up Baldwin

By HALLE SHILLING

Jazz at Duke? Where? Last Friday night, as the Duke Jazz Ensemble and the Paul Jeffrey Quartet performed in Baldwin Auditorium in a preview to the upcoming North Carolina International Jazz Festival.

The show, dedicated to trumpeter and jazz pioneer Miles Davis, was punctuated by the expert trumpeting of guest performer Eddie Henderson. Henderson, fresh from a tour in Portugal, lent an air of intensity to the performance as he soloed on each selection alternating between both trumpet and fluegelhorn.

The 19-member ensemble displayed its remarkable versatility and coordination throughout with its well integrated performance. The extensive horn section easily made a memorable impression on each selection as they perfectly executed each note.

The individual talent of the members was also carefully exhibited in numerous solo performances throughout the show. Strong piano accompaniment and refreshing drumwork also added to the vigor of the performance.

In the first selection, titled "If I Were a Bell," the ensemble skillfully accompanied Henderson's solo, producing a smooth and well-coordinated effect. This bouncy tune showcased the ensemble's obvious attention to harmony and timing.

In "Milestones," the ensemble articulated strong, well-pitched notes that seemed to pierce the music with varying contrasts to produce a distinct sound.

Midway through the show, the Paul Jeffrey Quartet

See JAZZ on page 13 ▶

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT INTERNSHIP

Why intern for 3 months when you can intern for a year? The Chronicle is seeking a highly motivated, business-oriented undergraduate to serve as the 1990-91 Business Manager. Working closely with professional managers, the student interns during the summer, becoming familiar with the business office procedures and taking classes. Then, during the academic year, the Business Manager takes a reduced course load and leads a student staff in the operation of a business office. Interns gain year-long, valuable business and managerial experience that makes for excellent career opportunities.

Prospective interns should contact Eric Hamish, Business Manager, or Barry Eriksen, General Manager, by Monday, March 5, 1990 at The Chronicle Business Office, 103 West Union or call 684-3811.

MARTHA ROSLER

Visiting Artist will show and discuss two recent video works

"Baby M" and
"If it's too bad to be true, it could be DISINFORMATION"

Tuesday, February 27, 1990 at 7:30 p.m.
Video Screening Room, Bryan Center (Lower Level)
Free and open to the public.

Martha Rosler's work concerns the mythologies of everyday life, especially as they affect women. Her understanding myth has led her to focus on the media, a primary mythmaker in the modern (and postmodern) world.

Martha Rosler's visit is part of the WINTERFEST OF CONTEMPORARY ARTS and is sponsored by the Duke University Institute of the Arts in cooperation with the Graduate Program in Literature and Theory, the Women's Studies Program, the Department of Art and Art History, and the Program in Film and Video.

the TROJAN WOMEN

Sheaffer Theater, Bryan Center FEBRUARY 21 - MARCH 4 no late seating
Tickets: Page Box office, 684-4444

Black women not part of pornography debate, professor says

By HELEN DOOLEY

The experiences of black women must be incorporated into discussions of pornography, prostitution, rape and other issues of "sexual politics," a feminist thinker told 100 people in Social Sciences Building Monday.

Patricia Hill Collins, associate professor of Afro-American studies and sociology at the University of Cincinnati, said the intersection of race, class, and gender are important factors in analyzing political and sexual domination of oppressed groups. Collins's speech, titled "Black Women and Sexual Politics," was the last in a series of lectures sponsored by the Women's Studies Program.

Control and exploitation of black women's sexuality have constituted important parts of this domination, Collins said.

Afro-American women, however, have not been included in the discussion of sexual politics, Collins said. Much of the literature on issues such as pornography, prostitution and rape has ignored the black female experience, she added.

"I had a lot of trouble finding a lot written about pornography that took race into account," she said.

Pornography is grounded in racism and sexism, Collins said, as some black women were bred as mistresses for slave masters. The breeding was to create women that approximated white beauty "as closely as possible," Collins said.

Different pornographic images developed for different races, as "pornography emerged in a specific system of class, race and gender," Collins continued.

While white women are depicted as objects, black women appear in pornography as animals, Collins said. "Whiteness [is] symbolic of civilization and culture, and [it] separates objects from animals."

"The portrayal of black women as animals foreshadowed" racial images which characterize pornography today, Collins said.

Modern pornography, however, has direct roots in the past treatment of black women, Collins said. "Afro-American women were not included in pornography as an afterthought, but constitute a key pillar on which modern pornography rests," she said.

Slave culture played an important role in the development of sexual exploitation of Afro-American women, she added.

The auction block, rather than pictures, constituted the pornography of the 19th century, as women were displayed to be bought and sold, Collins said.

Utilizing author Alice Walker's descriptions, Collins explained some of the historical context behind the images of Afro-American women in pornography.

"Black women were used as sexual objects for the pleasure of white men," Collins said. The common occurrence of rape against Afro-American women led to the assumption that black women were "passive and submissive," Collins said.

Black women became profitable commodities in the world of slavery and remain as commodities in modern-day pornography, Collins said.

Further study of sexual politics should attempt to develop a race, class and gender analysis that helps to explain black women's experience, Collins said.

Society needs to look at "how particular social/structural institutions penetrate to the level of consciousness" and influence daily life, she said.

GPSC wants news with its beer

By MICHELLE HEYER

The graduate student lounge will now offer its patrons a complementary copy of the Durham Morning Herald, thanks to an allocation from the Graduate and Professional Student Council (GPSC).

GPSC approved Monday night a request to spend $10 of the lounge's $225 budget for a subscription to the Herald. The lounge, located in the Hideaway, sells graduate students refreshments during the morning and afternoon.

The small allocation caused a fairly large controversy. "If we're going to give [the bar] money, we should make it contingent on improvements first," said economics representative David Anderson.

Since last semester, GPSC has been pressuring the Hideaway to buy new furniture and keep the bar cleaner during the day, when it functions as a lounge.

"It's not getting better," Anderson said. "If anything, it's getting worse."

Carl Heine, who serves as GPSC's liaison with the Hideaway's board of directors, told Anderson improvements were underway, but couldn't be accomplished overnight.

But others joined Anderson's criticism. "I'd like to express my dissatisfaction with some of the improvements," said representative Van Niemela. For example, he said, "there's a new partition in the men's room that's just a cinder block three feet high. To me, that doesn't constitute a partition."

"The partition's a work in progress," replied Heine. "It has to be built slowly, otherwise it might fall over."

Heine said the newspaper subscription would help boost lounge attendance. "It's something to get the place going," he said.

Heine also told the graduate council that he had met with Hideaway Corporation President Tyler Johnson and Vice President for Student Affairs William Griffith to discuss extending the bar's alcohol permit to afternoon hours.

Griffith is still considering the issue, Heine said.

But Heine said Griffith did take immediate action to help improve the lounge. "He gave us all his old magazines," Heine said. "We got everything from The Economist to Rolling Stone."

CLIFF BURNS/THE CHRONICLE

Patricia Hill Collins

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

BARBARA

Duke University
Museum of Art

in conjunction with the exhibit

BARBARA
SOHO AT DUKE
KRUGER

announces a lecture by the artist

in cooperation with the Department of Art and Art History,

The Institute of the Arts, and the Women's Studies Program

Wednesday,
February 28
4:00 p.m.

BROAD ST.
OPTICAL

Since 1980

$30 OFF

Complete Pair of Glasses

Featuring An All New Frame Line.

20% Discount to Duke Students & Employees with I.D.

(Offer not valid with any sale item)

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

909 Broad St., Durham

2 blocks from East Campus

OPEN: 9-5 Mon-Fri
286-4347

NewView

A Satellite Showcase of Independent Film and Video

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
You are welcome to attend all or part of NewView

Wednesday, February 28 • 1:00 to 6:00
Bryan Center Video Screening Room

Sponsored by the Program in Film and Video and Cable 13

Things could be looking up for Nicaragua, local experts think

By CHRIS O'BRIEN

While local observers of Nicaraguan politics offered varied interpretations of Sunday's elections, all groups expressed hope that the results would signal peace and economic recovery for the ravaged Central American country.

Nicaraguan voters went to the polls Sunday to elect a new president and National Assembly. Violeta Barrios de Chamorro, representing the United National Opposition (UNO), emerged victorious in the presidential race over Daniel Ortega of the reigning Sandinista government. In addition, UNO won a majority in the National Assembly.

The outcome of the elections was most likely fueled by the Nicaraguan people's despair over the "sorry state" of their economy, said William Ascher, professor of public policy. In the 10 years since the Sandinistas ousted the Somoza dictatorship, the country has been victimized by a civil war funded by the United States and the Soviet Union, a U.S. economic embargo, a devastating hurricane and general economic mismanagement by the Sandinistas.

Ascher was a member of an independent international commission that released a report in February 1989 on Central American recovery and development.

"And the Sandinista government may not have been as democratic as some wanted," he added.

Rev. Sam Hope of Durham Witness for Peace, placed the burden of the outcome on U.S. policy, however. Witness for Peace is a national organization that sends volunteers among rural Nicaraguans to monitor the effects of U.S. policy on that country.

"We feel sad that the people over 10 years ... have been brought to their knees," Hope said. "They couldn't take it anymore."

"The U.S. policy has made the people cry uncle."

Critics and proponents of past U.S. policy agree that the election will mark a turning point in U.S.-Nicaraguan relations. Among the short-term effects will be a lifting of the trade embargo and an end to contra funding, according to Ole Holsti, George V. Allen professor of political science.

"It would be rather preposterous if the [the U.S.] didn't support the side we backed," Holsti said. "But after doing a lot of damage to the economy, do we feel an obligation to help them rebuild?"

"This is a fantastic opportunity to normalize relations," Ascher said.

Another important question in Nicaragua's future will be the role of the military, Holsti said. The Sandinistas, who control the army, have not indicated whether they plan to relinquish their position. Nicaragua maintains one of the largest militaries in the region, and this puts a "huge drain on the economy," Holsti added.

The economic future of Nicaragua is still very much in doubt, Holsti said. The Central American country faces many of the same problems as the Eastern European countries, such as a stagnant economy and the task of instituting democracy. "It's easy to get rid of the old guys," Holsti said. "But the problem comes after. What should be done next?"

Hope said regardless of the actions of the UNO government, his group will continue to keep an eye on Nicaragua. "We will continue our presence in Nicaragua and report what we see," Hope said. "People should support the government but be cautious and watchful."

Observers agreed that the prospects for Nicaragua's future seem brighter. A more benevolent U.S. policy combined with the end of the regional isolation will most likely benefit Nicaragua's economy, Holsti said.

A good deal of investment capital left the country after Somoza's overthrow due to fears that the Sandinistas would seize property, Ascher said. Investors may be less frightened of UNO's policies.

Graduate student Tim Dayton, a member of the student-run Central American Solidarity Committee, wondered how the Sandinistas would function as an opposition group. Because UNO is a coalition of political groups, the Sandinistas will continue to be the largest political organization in the country. The fractured nature of UNO may allow the Sandinistas to maintain local control over such institutions as the agricultural cooperatives.

"The question right now," Dayton said, "is whether the revolution is over?"

Sandinistas lose in landslide, will cede presidency in April

■ NICARAGUA from page 1

given way to democratic change.

Chamorro, 60, is the widow of Pedro Joaquín Chamorro, the newspaper publisher whose assassination touched off the rebellion that led to the Sandinista takeover. She ran as the candidate of the 14-party National Opposition Union, a coalition of leftists, rightists, and other Nicaraguan parties.

The official voting results, supervised by a large contingent of international observers, including former U.S. President Jimmy Carter, gave Chamorro a lead of 14.5 percentage points.

Her vote total with 82 percent of the ballots counted was put at 633,357, or 55.2 percent of the presidential vote. Ortega of the Sandinista National Liberation Front received 468,040 votes, or 40.8 percent of the total.

Small parties received the rest of the votes as Nicaraguans elected a president, vice president, and National Assembly, which the opposition will now control.

Across the country, beginning in the early morning, there was the almost surreal sensation of imminent change.

Nicaraguans shared a widespread sense of awe at the power of their own votes, and disbelief that something so pervasive and apparently entrenched as the Sandinista Front had suddenly been swept aside.

A huge rally planned near Sandinista headquarters slowly dissolved into a

LPI PHOTO

Former Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega

mournful gathering, while opposition loyalists whooped it up at the restaurant that has become their staging ground.

Polls by outside groups consistently suggested that the Sandinistas would sweep to victory, and just last week the government mounted a rally of at least 300,000 people that dwarfed similar opposition demonstrations.

(919) 286-9184

2424 Erwin Road, Brownstone Inn, Durham, NC

Cutting hair is only part of our job.
Cutting your hair the way you want it is everything.
Our experienced staff is trained to listen first...then cut.
Try this revolutionary new experience at

L'ORIENTALE COIFFURES

Straight from the Soviet Union
The Glasnost Film Festival

1. Marshall Blucher: A Portrait Against the Background of an Epoch
1988, 69m. d. Vladimir Eisner
An attempt to unlock the riddle of the show trials of the Thirties, through the biography of one hero, irreproachable except for his role in the condemnation of his comrades.

2. The Wood Goblins
1987, 19m. d. Boris Kustov
Portrait of a man who suffered from a bureaucratic error in the last years of the Stalin era, and who now struggles for justice from his self-imposed isolation.

3. The Trial: Part Two
1988, 55m. d. Igor Belyayev
The show trials of the Thirties, judged in the court of conscience by today's Soviet citizens. Attempts were made to suppress this film.

4. This is How We Live
1987, 30m. d. Vladimir Ostedchik
A frank and disturbing look at unofficial young people's groups in the Soviet Union. What are they looking for and will they be happy with what they find?

Shows at 6:00 and 10:00 p.m. Bryan Center Film Theater
FREE to Duke students (except Law & Divinity)
$3.00 for others

CATCH A WAVE

An exciting educational experience awaits you on North Carolina's sundrenched coast, so come and

EXPLORE THE MARINE SCIENCES

at Duke's seaside campus - The Marine Lab.

Summer Term Courses

I	May 14	- June 15
II	June 18	- July 20
III	July 23	- August 24

Stimulating lectures, challenging labs, direct field & shipboard experience, in a natural & unique setting. For both undergrad science & non-science majors, and graduate students. Courses in biology, botany, cell biology, forestry and environmental studies, geology, public policy studies & zoology.

Don't get closed out of the course of your choice. apply early!

FALL & SPRING SEMESTERS ALSO OFFERED
Information and application materials available in 027 Bio. Sci., 04 Allen Building, or contact:
ADMISSIONS, DUKE MARINE LAB,
BEAUFORT, NC 28516
(919) 728-2111

Dialing the telephone gets a little tougher for 919 area code callers

By JAY EPPING

Dialing long distance? Starting this Thursday, your fingers will have to do more walking when calling within the 919 area code.

Beginning March 1, anybody calling within the 919 area code (including Chapel Hill and Raleigh) will have to dial 1 + 919 and a telephone number instead of just dialing 1 + the number, said a Ms. Carty with Southern Bell in Wilmington. Southern Bell policy forbids employees to give out their first names.

The switch has come about because Southern Bell has run out of phone numbers under the old system. The company first tried to add another area code to North Carolina, but their request was refused.

Instead, the telephone company was told to go to the 1 + area code + number scheme. There are only five area codes left for use in the North America and the Caribbean, so telephone companies are being told to change to the new method.

The new system frees more phone numbers, Carty said, by changing how the company's computer reads the numbers.

When a 1 or 0 is dialed before a phone number, it tells the computer the call is not local. That won't change. What will change is how the computer reads the next three numbers.

Under the present system, all area codes have either a 1 or a 0 as the second number. No prefix (a prefix is the first three numbers of the phone number xyz-abc) presently has a 1 or 0 in the second number. If the computer sees the 1 or 0 it knows the call is to another area code. If the numbers aren't there, it knows to keep the call in the same area code.

Why dialing 919 + number within this area code means more telephone numbers:

Presently, all area codes have a 0 or a 1 as the second digit, and no prefix (the first three digits of a local phone number) has a 0 or a 1 as the second digit. For example, with the old system, if you were to dial 1-212-xxxx, the phone company computer would be unable to tell whether you wanted a long distance number with a 212 prefix in the 919 area, or you had been interrupted before dialing the last three digits of a New York City number. By requiring the area code for all long distance calls, the new system will make 144 new prefixes (with 0s or 1s) available to the 919 area.

Prior to the adoption of the new system, the problem with adding the new prefixes was that they would confuse the computer. The computer would be unable to determine whether the first three numbers are an area code or a prefix.

That could cause a caller to wait forever if the computer thought the prefix was an area code, or call the wrong person if the computer thought the area code was a prefix. "You wouldn't know where your call would end up," Carty said. "Neither would we."

By making everyone calling long distance include the area code, Southern Bell eliminates the guessing game. The computer will know the numbers are the area code, ensuring a call home to New Jersey isn't sent to Rocky Mount instead.

ASDU mad about apathy, spars over WXDU, J-frosh budgets

By DAVID MCINTOSH

ASDU legislators came out swinging Monday night in a meeting marked by intense debate over budget proposals.

Some legislators saw this fiery side of ASDU as a positive change from the more laid-back approach that has dominated some past sessions. There was heated discussion over the direction ASDU is following, and the budgets for the WXDU student radio station and next year's Freshman Advisory Counselor (FAC) program.

Setting the tone for the meeting, ASDU President Connie Percy opened with a question and answer session concerning the state of ASDU. She was met with much concern over the lack of interest expressed by many legislators.

Trinity freshman Richard Moore scolded the legislature as a whole for its "pathetic" handling at the last legislative meeting of a resolution that would have supported University efforts to purchase new buses.

Moore said too many legislators did not give the resolution enough time in debate to understand its purpose, and voted against the resolution just so that the meeting would end.

Many legislators agreed with this assessment of the last meeting. Trinity senior Ron Temple challenged legislators who think ASDU is boring to write resolutions they want debated instead of just complaining.

An intense debate over the FAC budget for next year followed the question and answer period. The debate centered around the amount of events scheduled for possible January freshmen in 1991.

The Student Organizations Committee (SOC) budgeted only one major event for January freshman orientation, while fall orientation included two major events. The apparent discrimination against "J-frosh" was combatted by the introduction of two amendments. After much political sparring, a friendly amendment allowing an extra $240 bagel brunch was passed along with the original budget.

WXDU's budget was also approved after some strong discussion. Although no particular expenditure in the budget was questioned, some legislators wondered why ASDU was spending approximately $30,000 dollars to support a radio station that they said a majority of the campus does not listen to.

STUDY THE ARTS IN NEW YORK CITY!

Applications are still being accepted for the Fall 1990 Duke in New York Arts Program

You receive a full semester of Duke credit for successful completion of this program, which is administered by the Institute of the Arts. Components of the program are:

- Internship with professional artist or arts organization
- A course of your choice at New York University
- Two seminars with Duke faculty member Jane Desmond: AI 101S: Post-modernism and the Arts, and AI 103S: Made in New York- The Structure of the New York Artworld. Seminars include attendance at arts events and visits by guest professionals. Stop by the Institute of the Arts, 109 Bivins Building (East Campus) for an application, or call Kathy Silbiger at 684-6654 for more information. Applications accepted through February 27th.

EDITORIALS

PAGE 8

FEBRUARY 27, 1990

On the record

Last Friday, the Board of Trustees finally had their turn at bat discussing last month's run-in between men's basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski and The Chronicle's sports staff. Though the issue was tabled as quickly as chair Fitzgerald Hudson could wield his gavel, a few remarks were nevertheless quite revealing.

Of particular note was trustee Dr. Herman Postma's angry condemnation of a reporter's use of a hidden tape recorder during the Krzyzewski session. After denouncing the recorder as "inappropriate," Postma proceeded to inquire as to whether The Chronicle had been "duly chastized" for its trespasses.

Ironically, Postma either wasn't aware of or wasn't mentioning the fact that trustee meetings in the Allen Building board room are also taped for posterity — using microphones hidden in the ceiling.

Obviously, most of the participants know of the arrangement and are quite comfortable with it. As any official will confirm, the microphones are simply the most convenient way to capture the board's important and often sensitive deliberations for the University's record.

For a newcomer, however, there are no indications that the walls literally have ears.

Postma and other trustees who criticized The Chronicle's handling of the Krzyzewski affair obviously have more in mind than a discussion over proper taping procedures. Some trustees, including Hudson, believe Athletic Director Tom Butters handled the incident in an acceptable manner. If "handling" means evasive rhetoric and veiled threats, we suppose he's right. In any case, Hudson was concerned enough about something that he wanted the matter discussed confidentially.

And once again, President Keith Brodie was content to let others handle a situation on which he should have taken a stand long ago. Brodie's chronic fence-sitting over the Krzyzewski affair is confusing and unjustified; the University has a right to know what he thinks of the matter, one way or the other. Judging from his silence during and after Postma's tirade, one might believe Brodie had never even heard there was a problem.

In the meantime, we have Herman Postma to thank for a new spin on an old adage: Trustees in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.

DISGUISED AS A PARACHUTING CATERPILLAR, WILY COYOTE BENNETT PREPARES TO POUNCE ON HIS PREY, THE CRAFTY DRUG-RUNNER.

THE CHRONICLE established 1905

Craig Whitlock, Editor
Matt Scalfani, Managing Editor
Barry Eriksen, General Manager
Matt McKenzie, Editorial Page Editor

Chris O'Brien, News Editor
Rodney Peele, Sports Editor
Beau Dure, Arts Editor
Jim Flowers, Photography Editor
Eric Harnish, Business Manager
Linda Nettles, Production Manager
Charles Carson, Production Supervisor

Jamie O'Brien, News Editor
Keith Lublin, Features Editor
Jay Epping, City & State Editor
Jim Jeffers, Photography Editor
Sue Newsome, Advertising Manager
Susan Shank, Student Advertising Manager
Carolyn Poteet, Creative Svcs. Coord.

The opinions expressed in this newspaper are not necessarily those of Duke University, its students, workers, administration or trustees. Unsigned editorials represent the majority view of the editorial board. Columns, letters and cartoons represent the views of their authors.

Phone numbers: Editor: 684-5469; News/Features: 684-2663; Sports: 684-6115; Business Office: 684-6106; Advertising Office: 684-3811; Classifieds: 684-6106.

Editorial Office (Newsroom): Third Floor Flowers Building; Business Office: 103 West Union Building; Advertising Office: 101 West Union Building.

© 1990 The Chronicle, Box 4696, Duke Station, Durham, N.C. 27706. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced in any form without the prior, written permission of the Business Office.

Letters

What's so funny about preventing rape?

To the editor:

I am responding to a letter by Bryan Cannon and Timothy Gosnell ("Why not eliminate the problem at its source?" Feb. 14). They seem to be upset that a woman would be angry at men because rapes are overwhelmingly done by men to women. Are they mad or shocked because a woman has had the nerve to voice frustration and anger against a fear that she has to live with every second of her life? Neither locked doors nor police always help. Maybe they have never been to jail or to a prison, a few places where men have to fear rape? Because if they haven't, I doubt they could really understand a woman's reaction toward rape. It would require empathy. Cannon and Gosnell do not seem capable. In fact, they seem to think rape is a joke. You know, the kind of guys that sit around laughing about it not caring that the woman who may be listening has been attacked herself. I have some male friends that I dearly love and would be crushed if they just disappeared but when I hear men taking rape lightly, I start thinking about eliminating the problem at the source. That doesn't make me irrational, a joke, or a criminal — just another woman that is angry.

E. Brooks
pathology department

This Valentine gift wasn't an act of love

To the editor:

It used to be that upon leaving a surprise gift, the giver would be beset with anxious thoughts of the nature, "I hope she doesn't get back unexpectedly," "He's going to love this," or "I want to see her face when she finds this." Maybe now, it would be more appropriate to wonder, "Will she find this?"

It's one thing to think twice before leaving your wallet, checkbook or Duke I.D. card unattended, as mentioned in a previous letter to the editor. It is quite another to wonder whether it's safe to leave an innocent Valentine's Day gift outside a second floor dorm room. To the women of Duke: Has anyone received a white stuffed animal seal accompanied by a dozen red roses? Maybe even a card whited-out in oh ... two significant places?

Well, if you received this Valentine's Day surprise, we'd just like to say, many thought of love and affection went into its making, from someone you don't even know.

Edwin Jean
Lisi Shoda
Trinity '90

Honor Code must reflect personal standards

To the editor:

During each of my three years here, questions have been raised about the Honor Code and honor system at Duke University. In this instance, the problem surfaced following the acquittal of a plagiarism case by the UJB. Although I must plead ignorance regarding this specific case, I do agree with Professor Fish that once again we must examine this issue ("Plagiarism policy requires a second look," Jan. 30). However, the scope of this problem is much bigger than we are leading ourselves to believe. Answering the questions he raises and reexamining Duke's plagiarism policy will only be a superficial fix to a much deeper issue.

The existing honor system simply does not instill a sense of academic integrity in this community. Although the Honor Code may be eloquently stated, the words mean nothing as long as a sense of honor is not felt by the entire University community. As long as graduate teaching assistants are told they must proctor all tests to insure no one is cheating, as long as professors cannot freely utilize the option of take-home tests because even the students are not convinced that their counterparts are not cheating, as long as students cannot feel confident leaving their bookbags in the cubby-holes outside the University store or by their tents outside of Cameron without the fear of theft, the current honor system will not work. How can it when there exists this shadow of doubt regarding the honesty of the entire community?

An honor system cannot simply be a set of rules which we feel obligated to follow because we are told to do so. The written code should only be a symbol for the standards that the entire community upholds. Until each of us is ready to embrace a sense of personal honor and realize the importance of academic and personal integrity for every person in the Duke community, any Honor Code or policy we create will be ineffective.

Mickey McDonald
graduate student in mathematics

On the record

I have not seen the magazine and I do not intend to see it . . . I don't do Playboy.

Eugene Corrigan, commissioner of the ACC, on Playboy magazine's April issue featuring the "Girls of the ACC"

LETTERS POLICY

The Chronicle urges all its readers to submit letters to its editor.

Letters must be typed and double-spaced and must not exceed 300 words. They must be signed and dated and must include the author's class or department, phone number and local address for purposes of verification. The Chronicle will not publish anonymous or form letters or letters whose sources cannot be confirmed.

The Chronicle reserves the right to edit for length and clarity, and to withhold letters, based on the discretion of the editors.

Letters to the editor should be mailed to Box 4696, Duke Station or delivered in person to The Chronicle office on the third floor of Flowers Building.

As the East breaks its chains, old hatreds gain new strength

PARIS — Among the ugly costs of Communist rule was the failure to keep pace with revulsion at the ancient disease of anti-Semitism, let alone create a new mentality, as boasted. So a side effect of advancing release from repression in the East is revival of slogans of hate.

They have appeared openly in parts of Eastern Europe in this year of budding democracy. But the most ominous have come in the Russian heartland, where a combination of deliberate attempts to stir provocative disorder and atavistic prejudice are bringing old demons to the surface.

It was not unforeseen. As much as three years ago, Jews in Moscow told me of signs of renewed persecutions. Gorbachev reformers warned of a coalition of Communist hard-liners clinging to their privilege and anti-Communist nationalists exalting the mystical "purity" of Mother Russia.

Last weekend the Leningrad schoolteacher Nina Andreyeva, dubbed the "Pasionaria of the conservatives," earned rousing applause at a Moscow rally denouncing Mikhail Gorbachev and company, crying, "Long live the unity of patriotic and socialist forces."

Le Monde's correspondent Bernard Guetta translated

Foreign affairs Flora Lewis

Overcoming anti-Semitism is another test of Gorbachev's "new thinking."

it accurately to mean "Long live national-Communism," a reminder of an aggressive German movement called National Socialism.

The anguish expressed at the prospect of a unified German state comes in part from neighbors' concern at a new dimension of economic and political power in the center of Europe. But more, it stems from the vivid memory of the Nazis and their calculated inhumanity.

At this point in history, there is more reason to worry about the infection of anti-Semitism farther East. It remains endemic.

For the first time, the Gorbachev regime has opened a criminal investigation of the organization Pamyat, which means memory, for violation of the law against "incitement to hatred and to national and racial conflict." It clearly represents a decision that more would be lost by ignoring Pamyat's anti-Semitic campaign than by a publicized prosecution.

The challenge was flagrant. There were not only speakers at Andreyeva's rally listing Jewish names as the source of Soviet ills. There was not only the incursion of Pamyat members at a Moscow meeting of liberal writers last month, shouting "Jews, Freemasons out — next time we'll come with machine guns."

There was an underground pamphlet, finally published by Moscow's Institute of Energy to show how bad things were, demanding that "Jews and their relations be forbidden to submit theses, to acquire academic degrees and knowledge, to join the Soviet Communist Party, to be elected to the soviets, and to be named to leading positions in the party, the state and elsewhere."

It still took urgent insistence by reformist newspapers such as Literaturnaya Gazeta and Moscow News to move the prosecutor's office to act.

In Romania, vandals attacked a synagogue in the town of Oradea last week. In Hungary, an undercurrent of anti-Semitism is being exploited by nationalists in the campaign for free elections in March. A noted Western economist was told she couldn't join the board of a new Budapest joint venture because she was Jewish.

The Catholic primate of Poland last year spoke abusively of Jews during the dispute about the convent at Auschwitz. Now, at last, work has evidently started on a new building site, and the Solidarity-led Polish government has "deplored" the officially inspired anti-Semitic campaign that forced thousands of Jews to emigrate in 1968, offering return of citizenship to all. Diplomatic relations are being restored with Israel.

There are only a few thousand Jews left in Poland. But the point is that it takes deliberate will and effort to expunge a mental scourge, as it does to establish democracy.

In Spain, the government has signed an agreement giving Jewish and Protestant religions equal status with Catholics for the first time since the expulsion of Jews in 1492, and it is prepared for a similar accord with Moslems.

Spain has been an inspiring example for the East in showing it is possible to move from dictatorship to democracy.

Gorbachev has opened the way for mass emigration of Jews. But it is no gain for the creation of a civil society in his country for them to be driven out.

Overcoming anti-Semitism is another test of his "new thinking" and his system's capacity for reform.

It's another way in which Communism fell behind, and another reason to urge him to get on with democracy and guaranteed human rights.

Flora Lewis' column is syndicated by the New York Times News Service.

Teach students to question, and you'll teach them to learn

Do I tell them? I don't. I can't bring myself to say the words. They sit collected in a semi-circle around me, the vestiges of high school glaring out at me from their shoes, stickered notebooks, varsity jackets. For once I am teacher and they are student. And I find I cannot tell them.

We talk about equality. Before them is a satiric short story which pushes ideals too far; I refer to several copies of the U.S. Constitution and the Declaration of Independence. We read and cite and discuss. I ask the question and she, tall and calmly sure of herself, answers on reflex, not missing a beat.

"Yeah, I really think so. Here people can, you know, really become what they want to be." Heads nod in her wake; she is almost glowing. "That's what's good about this country."

Innocence, hope, blindness, faith. She smiles.

Have I fallen that far? Every day the classic image of the collegic malcontent rings ever truer as I emerge from class after class struck by new "illuminating truths". Disillusionment is everywhere, staring at me from unread volumes on my desk, waiting to be let loose. Most parents of college students must have known some classic Christmas break or phone call with their child wailing about injustice, the system, the loaded dice of western culture. They wince and bear it and wait for it to pass, waiting for the doubts to subside. They usually do, but at least some questions remain. I look at the young student before me. How long ago was it that I had her faith, that I decided things were the way they seemed?

The co-teacher and I marvel after class. They're so innocent, she says, they just don't think there are any problems. We sit together and feel cynical. I think about their school and what it might be like. I turn my mind back to a far off American History class, remembering that old sterile book with uncontested analyses and deceptive generalizations. American Indians dispatched in several paragraphs. A sanitized and idealized Civil War. Cheery dismissal of McCarthyism.

Burning bridges Eric Martin

Disillusionment is everywhere, staring at me from unread volumes on my desk, waiting to be let loose.

That was back when I thought we went to school to find answers. There were theorems to trust and results to find.

We must have been learning something. You need a base, they say, before you can expand and explore. And yet that base so often comes in the guise of absolute authority, of complete wisdom and unquestionable truths. The students can marvel at what they learn but do they dissect, analyze or question? Are they taught these skills as well?

Even in that first year of college, as we eagerly collected wild stories of things done and quantities drunk, school was different. College was frustration. The more we learned the less we seemed to know, the more acutely aware of our ignorance we became. Where there had once been something that at least looked like answers there were now only questions. Is there really equality in the education system? Can we trust the press or our parents or government leaders? Is it worth $70,000 for any kind of education?

People notice when the questions start. "You're always asking why!" she says. Even the idealistic high school girl is frustrated for a moment. "I think that must be Duke students' favorite word — 'why'..." And I shut up.

I want to ask her why she thinks that's true. I wanted to beg her to ask me "why" something. Why are we reading this story, why are we bothering reading at all. Beyond the timestables and the dates of the American Revolution is something fundamental. It is questioning and wondering and thinking it through on your own. And it is little more than a ghost in the nation's education system. I want to tell her she had to question me and her teachers and everything, that a cliché like "question authority" gets that way because there's truth behind it. To teach her the one sure thing I have learned at Duke.

I can't tell them, though. They won't believe me and my telling them cannot do any good. So I ask if there are any questions and let them sit in the silence. Soon, perhaps, someone will ask me one.

Eric Martin is a Trinity junior.

Comics

Antimatter / Rob Hirschfeld

The Far Side / Gary Larson

Competition in nature

Doonesbury / Garry Trudeau

THE Daily Crossword by James Barrick

ACROSS

- 1 Uproar
3 Serves
9 Lower in rank
14 Saarinen
15 Game area
16 Risk
17 Grain after steeping
18 A dance
19 Floorboard
20 With 36A, message on some mail
23 Jumble
24 Age
25 Mourn
26 Philippines sea
30 Steal from 33 — patriae
34 Passageways
35 Chemical ending
36 See 20A
40 A contraction
41 Sound
42 Twelvemonth
43 Watch the kids
44 Kind of terrier
45 In a tender manner
47 Equal pref.
48 Sedan
49 Kind of mail
55 Mature
56 Strength
57 Air pollutant
59 Worship
60 Dies —
61 A Logan
62 Clivet's cousin
63 Wee
64 Hector Hugh Munro

DOWN

- 1 Abbr. in grammar
2 Spring
3 Woody's son
4 Earthenware fragment
5 Shocked
6 Hack
7 Cock-and-bull story
8 Salad
9 Acclaim
10 Kind of laugh
11 Bedouin
12 — qua non
13 Wapiti
21 Brown color
22 Slouch
25 — lazuli
26 Violin name
27 Dewy
28 — Hawkins Day
29 Reverse
30 Adjust a watch
31 Tatum or Ryan
32 Like a tavern
34 Titled one
37 Nursery item
38 Part of Can.
39 Summaries
45 Hospital item

© 1990 Tribune Media Services, Inc.

All Rights Reserved.

02/27/90

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

02/27/90

Calvin and Hobbes / Bill Watterson

THE CHRONICLE

Assistant sports editor: Josh Dill
Copy editors: Adrian Dollard, Chris O'Brien, Braxton Perkins, Craig Whitlock
Wire editors: David Schlesinger, Haile Shilling Associate photography editor: Cliff Burns
Layout artist: Craig Whitlock
Production assistant: Rolly Miller
Account representatives: Judy Bartlett, Betty Hawkins
Advertising sales staff: Trey Huffman, Miki Kurihara, Anna Lee, Jennifer Phillips, Laura Tawney, Serina Vash
Creative services staff: Michael Alcorn, Wendy Arundel, Loren Faye, Daniel Foy, Bill Gentner, Megan Haugland, Steven Heist, Kevin Mahler, Ann-Marie Parsons
Subscriptions manager: Dan Perlman
Classified managers: Candice Poisky, Liz Stainaker
Payables manager: Greg Wright
Credit manager: Judy Chambers
Business staff: Kevin Csernecky, Linda Markovitz, Susan Stevenson, Darren Weirnick
Secretaries: Pam Packtor, Jennifer Springer
Calendar coordinator: Pam Packtor

Tuesday, February 27

Counseling for survivors of sexual assault every Tues in Women's Center counseling room, 9 am - 3 pm. Call 684-3897 for appt.

Video presentation: "Baby M" and "Disinformation" discussion led by Marth Rosier, Rutgers. Video Screening Room, BC, 7:30 pm.

AN EARFUL OF LICKINGS, strong lang adult situations; call 684-2306. East Duke 209 Theater, 8 pm.

THE TROJAN WOMEN by Euripides. Page Box office 684-4444. Sheaffer Theater, BC, 8 pm.

Live for Life: Checkup Checklist. 1078 Duke South, 12:15 - 12:45 and 1 - 1:30 pm.

Guest Recital, Brenda Neese, cello, Linda Holzer, piano, Nelson Room, 8 pm.

"Mating genetics, ribosomal DNA variation, and systematics of Agropyre sect. Pediculae," by Dr. Steve Rehner, DU, 144 Bio Sci, 12:30 pm.

Circle K meeting, 208 Foreign Lang, 6 pm.

Community Calendar

"Marketing and Representing Prominent Sports Figures," by Bill Strickland, VP ProServ, Inc. 104 Law School, 12 - 1 pm.

Spanish Table. Mary Lou Williams Ctr, 6 - 7 pm.

Dinner discussion on Teen Pregnancy. Wannamaker IV, 5:30 pm.

DU Recycling Coop meeting, 133 Soc Psych, 7:30 pm. Get involved.

Homeless Project Meeting. Winsor Commons Room, 9 pm.

Neural Networks—An Alternative to Symbolic Computing? panel discussion. Papagayo's Board Room, 5 pm.

Wednesday, February 28

President's office hours for students. 207 Allen, 11 am - noon.

Mythology Series: "Sacrifice and Bliss," presented by Dr. Ed Hill, Wannamaker I Commons, 8 pm.

AN EARFUL OF LICKINGS, strong language, adult situations; call 684-2306. East Duke 209 Theater, 8 pm.

THE TROJAN WOMEN by Euripides. Page Box office 684-4444. Sheaffer Theater, BC, 8 pm.

Lutheran Campus Ministry Worship with Holy Communion. Chapel Basement, 9:30 pm.

Live for Life: Lunchbox Express. 204 Perkins, 5:10 - 6 pm.

Rapture's Christian Fellowship weekly bible study, all are welcome, Mary Lou Williams Ctr, 6 - 7 pm.

Chapel Lunchtime concert: Choral Vespers Ensemble. Chapel, 12:30 pm.

Free Vegetarian dinner, 229 Soc Sci, 5 - 7 pm. All welcome.

"Theory and Observations of Atmospheric Ozone and Related Constituents," Duke/UNC joint colloquium by Dr. James Russell, NASA Langley Research Ctr. 114 Physics, 4 pm. Refreshments, 234 Physics, 3:30 pm.

St. Joseph Historical Foundation and Martin Luther King steering committee: Fade to Black. Durham Arts Council, 8 pm.

"Civil Rights: Student Protest" with Bruce Payne, House P Commons, 7:30. Refreshments.

"Ecology and Conservation of Tropical Rainforests in Sri Lanka," by Charles Tambiah, DU, 205 Bio Sci, 5:30 pm.

Open Mike Night. Arts House Commons, 7 pm.

Galleriles Committee meeting. BC Boardroom, 5:30 pm.

"The Wiz" BC Film Theater, 7, 9 & 11 pm.

The Green House, ecology living group, meeting for Fall 1990. Epworth Commons, 9:30 pm.

B.C.
Johnny HartFRED BASSETT
Alex GrahamJUMP START
Robb ArmstrongKUDZU
Doug MarletteMOTHER GOOSE
Mike PetersROBOTMAN
Jim MeddickSHOE
Jeff MacNalley

THE CHRONICLE'S COMICS ELECTION

No, we aren't running ten new comic strips on a permanent basis. The purpose of this sudden proliferation of artistic satire is to let our readers decide for themselves which strip should be awarded a much-coveted spot on the comics page. The winner will replace Palm City, which was unceremoniously retired last week.

So for the week of Feb. 26-March 2, the nine comic strips on this page and Rob Hirschfeld's Anti-matter, located for the time being in Palm City's old spot, will appear for your perusal. Use a discerning and critical eye; this is the first comics election in almost four years, and unless another artist decides to take a permanent vacation, the choices will be fixed for a long, long time.

Election Day is Friday, March 2. Ballot boxes will be located on East and West Campuses, and probably the Medical Center. Ballots will be available at the polls and in this space on Friday. We encourage heavy reader participation in this historic event; last time almost 4,000 people voted. In fact, you will probably sense a bit of hype over the next few days. Anyone is eligible to vote, regardless of age, sex, literacy, citizenship and hometown.

HEATHCLIFF/George Gately

THE QUIGMANS/Buddy Hickerson

"Beatrice, you know I've been happily married to Sylvia for many years...but I always think of you as the one that got away."

Classifieds

Announcements

WIN A HAWAIIAN

VACATION OR BIG SCREEN TV PLUS RAISE UP TO $1,400 IN JUST 10 DAYS! Objective: Fundraiser Committee. Minimal Money: Raise $1,400. Cost: Zero. Investment: Campus organizations, clubs, hats, sororities call OCMC: 1-800-932-0528/1-800-950-8472, ext. 10.

MYTHOLOGY SERIES

Come hear about "Sacrifice and Bliss" tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Wannamaker Commons.

DUKE UNIVERSITY/AMERICAN UNIVERSITY STUDY IN CAIRO APPLICATION DEADLINE: Applications for Fall 1990 DUE 5 p.m., Fri. Mar. 2, 1990 in the Study Abroad Office, 2022 Campus Dr.

STUDY ABROAD LEAVE OF ABSENCE PACKETS are available in the Study Abroad Office, 2022 Campus Dr. and are DUE Thu. Mar. 6, 5 p.m. in the Study Abroad Office for students planning to study abroad for the Academic Year 1990-91 & Fall 1990.

CANCUN CANCUN

Spring Break $349. Still space available. Will sell out. Call today Courtney 831-9382. Rich 829-7280.

BOG INTERVIEWS

are just around the corner: Feb. 27, 28, Mar. 1. Sign up on our bulletin board or call Thatcher, 684-7273, Freundschaft.

BOG INTERVIEWS

You owe it to your friends, you owe it to yourself. For info call 684-7273.

PHOTO HELP

Photographer Todd Cull is at the Duke Craft Center, lower level of the Bryan Center, every Tue from 4 to 6 p.m. to offer photography advice. All photographers are welcome to stop by!

HISTORY MAJORS

Interested in the history honors program? An informational session will take place Mar. 1 at 5 p.m. in West Duke 104. Please come. Deadline for applications April 1. Call Tom Robitsek 684-5979 for details.

WOMEN

Interested in thinking about symbol systems and rituals particular to women's lives? Come to an exploratory meeting to talk about women's spirituality, including goddess theologies and Women's Church. 4-6 p.m., Fri. Mar. 2, Mary Lou Williams Center. Refreshments will be served. Call the Women's Center, 684-3897, for reservations.

Interested in Careers in Higher Education Administration? Join us for a seminar on Thu. Mar. 1, 1990 at 4 p.m. in 139 Soc-Sci and hear representatives from: Academic Administration, Admissions, Alumni Affairs, Career Services, Development, Financial Aid, Human Resources, Residential Life, Student Activities, Student Affairs and Student Life. Sponsored by Placement Services.

ACE: Organizational meeting for Association of College Entrepreneurs Tue. Feb. 27, 7 p.m., 126 Soc-Psych. Leadership positions open.

CIVIL RIGHTS

What relevance does the 60s civil rights movement have to today's society? What obligations do students of today have to the civil rights movement of yesterday? Come express your opinions and ideas in an informal discussion with Bruce Payne, Wed. Feb. 28 House P commons at 7:30. Sponsored by Interaction.

OUT OF THE BLUE

Come hear a great concert in Canterbury Commons Tue. Feb. 27 at 9:30.

TEENAGE PREGNANCY

Dinner and Discussion in Wannamaker IV at 5:30 on Tue. Feb. 27 sponsored by Students for Choice and the Women's Coalition.

ASH WEDNESDAY

In Duke Chapel, Feb. 28, 1990, 8 a.m. — Ash Wednesday Service. Dr. Earl Brill and Pastor Hugh Beck, 12:30 p.m. — Ash Wednesday Musical Offering: Chapel Vespers Ensemble Ms. Donna Sparks, Director. Memorial Chapel, 5:15 p.m. — Ash Wednesday Service. Dr. Earl Brill and Pastor Hugh Beck.

All house presidents. NEXT UHA meeting will be held on Tue. Feb. 27 at 5:30 p.m. in 201 Flowers. Attendance needed. Mandatory?

INVESTMENT CLUB

We will discuss a stock valuation model and industry progress. 5:00-5:30 p.m. Rm. 225 SH.

FAC INTERVIEWS

If you could not schedule a time to interview to be a FAC, additional times have been added. Please sign up at the BC Info Desk, Wed. Fri. First come, first served. These are the last interview times available.

BE A DUKE PAL

to a University employee's child. CSN is looking for dedicated students who want to be good role models and friends. Information session Wed. 7 p.m. 124 SocSci or call Jerry Reiter 684-1953.

HEY THETAS! The Scholarship Banquet is tonight, 6 p.m. Episcopal Cr. Please bring your own drink.

ADPI-Exec

Meeting tonight in House G, 6 p.m. All sisters are welcome.

THE CONNELLS

tickets on sale Wed & Thu on Walkway. $15 — Benefits Habitat! Great show! Great cause!

Vantive Rep will be at Bryan Cr 101-G Tue. Thu. for DG, Tridelta, Zetas, APHQ, PBPB, AEPH from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. for proof selection for composites.

CH-OS: Study break tonight for potential Big Sisters and Pledges. House A commons, 8 p.m. Y'all come!

ALL THETAS!

Scholarship Banquet at our chapter mtg tonight, 6 p.m. in the Episcopal Cr. — Food, Awards, and Speaker! Pledges are invited — come at 6:15.

OPEN MIKE NIGHT

at the Arts House! Everyone is invited to perform or spectate. New. Unusual time: 7 p.m. Date: Wed. Feb. 28.

EPISCOPAL CAMPUS MINISTRY ASH WEDNESDAY Services — 8 a.m. & 5:15 p.m. in Duke Chapel. Holy Eucharist and Distribution of Ashes.

Camping for UNC

Please attend the open forum on tent policy. Tonight 6 p.m. 136 SocSci. Policy for UNC will be decided on.

ASA MEETING!!!!

7 p.m. tonight in MLWC. Get the scoop on Taiwan and China programs!

Help Wanted

Research Asst

This individual will carry out research projects for the Sr. Vice President of the University. Subjects cover a broad range of topics, and are assigned directly by the Sr. Vice President. In addition, general office tasks will be assigned as needed. This is a full-time position beginning May 15, with the possibility of part-time this semester. For application information, call 684-5614.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900-2000/mo. Summer, yr round. All countries, all fields. Free info. Writ DC, PO Box 52-NC02, Corona Del Mar, CA, 92625.

The Student Hosting Office needs a student worker on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3-5 p.m. Job involves taking phone requests from prospective students, recruiting hosts, and organizing info. If interested call Laura Sellers at the Admissions Office, 684-3214.

Hanging out in Durham this summer? Nothing to do? The Craft Center needs studio assistants for first and second summer sessions. Flexible Part Time Hours. No Experience Necessary. Call Krista Cipriano 684-2532. Work Study Preferred.

EDITORIAL ASSISTANT needed to help Duke Medical School scientists edit the proceedings of a scientific conference for publication. Preference given to applicants with background in scientific or medical writing. Work can be done at home. For specifics call David Dellinger at 286-6956. DUKE UNIVERSITY IS AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER.

PART TIME POSITIONS AVAILABLE — 9 a.m.-2 p.m. — RECEIVING CLERK — Responsible for the initial receipt, identification, preparation and initiation of chain of custody for samples received in the Forensic Drug Testing operation. Prior work experience in a high volume environment where attention to detail was critical is required. Salary commensurate with experience. Please apply in person or send resume to: Compuchem Corporation, 2208 Chapel Hill/Nelson Highway (Highway 54), Pamlico Bldg/Human Resources, Research Triangle Park, NC 27709.

Services Offered

Typing — Same or next day service $2/pg. Emergency typing welcome. Call Nick at 684-7620.

Child Care

Child care needed. In our home, RT, 2 young children. Call 732-3834 after 6 p.m.

Occasional eve sitter for 8 and/or 4 yr old near Duke. Transportation required. 493-3845.

Child care needed in my home for 3 y.o. Need own transportation. Call 681-5099 or 493-5397 (eves).

Apts. for Rent

2 BR 1 BA duplex convenient to Duke campuses avail Mar 1. $475/mo. Call 942-2858.

Houses for Rent

SDR House available now. Short term lease. Near E. Campus. Also houses/apts for next semester available. 1-7 bedrooms. Call 489-1989.

Real Estate Sales

JORDAN HILLS

Exclusive 3.5-7 acre wooded lots near Jordan Lake. Av. $10,000/ac. Beautiful pond views. Paved roads. 9 mi south of I-40. For brochure or showing call Doug Roberts, 489-3984 anytime.

For Sale — Misc.

Ticket For Sale

One way ticket to New York City leaving Mar 8 in the evening. Call 684-7626.

FOR SALE: Apartment Size, Whirlpool, Washer and Dryer. Like New. $375 or Best Offer. Call 489-3595.

Wanted to Buy

Interested in buying 2 tickets for the Carolina game. Please call Tom at 1-933-7246.

NEED TICKETS!

Desperately need tickets to UNC game for my family. Call John at 684-0968.

Lost and Found

Lost — grey ski pants somewhere between Anderson and Alexander Roads. Please call 493-3303.

Personals

25% OFF!

SPRING BREAK SPECIAL. Hide-a-way at MOUNTAIN BROOK DOTAGES in the Smokies. $-9.75 nightly for 2. FIREPLACES. Spa/sauna area. 704-585-4329.

JOB APPLICATIONS — GRADUATE SCHOOL — PASSPORT PHOTOS 2/$6, over 10 $2.50 ea. LAMINATED personal IDs — everything while you wait. LPI 900 W. Main — Across from Brightleaf. 683-2118.

WHO'S IN CONTROL?

Psychological safety and the need to control... this week's topic. Duke Student Adult Children of Alcoholics support group. Tue. 7 p.m. OS New Divinity.

BOG INTERVIEWS

Last chance. Bobol Tue, Wed and Thu of this week. Sign up or call 684-7273.

GABBA GABBA

We accept you, we accept you, one of us! But not if you don't interview. BOG interviews Feb 27, 28 and Mar 1. Sign up on bulletin board or call 684-7273.

House P!

Tomorrow night at 7:30 come discuss the civil rights movement with Bruce Payne. Stories, questions, discussion, and refreshments. Wow, what a night! That's 7:30. Wed House P commons brought to you by the Interaction committee of the DUU.

FLIRTATIOUS?

You've got nothing on me. Meet me at the Bryan Center, upper level. Tue. Mar. 6, 10a-2p. I'll teach you the fine art...

GOTCHA!

I've got your number... and you can get it! Breeze through the Bryan Center, Tue. Mar. 6, 10a-2p, and ask for Mira.

WHO'S MIRA???

All house presidents. NEXT UHA meeting will be held on Tue. Feb. 27 at 5:30 p.m. in 201 Flowers. Attendance needed. Mandatory?

FOR SALE: 2 NC Dance Theater Tickets. $17 each. For evening of Fri. Mar. 2. Call 684-0375.

ONLY 2 SPACES LEFT — Jamaica spring break! $528 includes hotel, air, transfers, taxes. Call today! The Travel Center 682-9378.

TEEN PREGNANCY

Dinner discussion anyone? All the pasta you can eat Tue. Feb. 27 5:30 Wannamaker IV.

LIVE IN SANFRAN?

Duke Chorale is looking for families to host singers in SF on 3/10/90. Interested? Call Jeanne, 684-1567.

SAMANTHA PELOSI

Give a HUG TODAY TO THE MOST AWESOME DG Little Sis! She's Wonderful! Love Your Big Sis.

JENNIFER KAHN

I'm so excited you're my little sister! And more importantly a great new friend! See you tonight! Love, YBS.

Spring Break! Ride all over Florida in an RV. If interested call 684-7893. Leave a message.

Hey Jule Sigal

Only three more days!

Muffins for dinner! — I love you! And I'm telling you now, (scoops) — Love Your Clandestine Friend LOGAN. PS — do you ever read these?

IOI III: A random day, but a special thought, I LOVE YOU! Wednesday Ice Cream? GMLAW.

FOUR MEN

but not for men only. Come to panel discussion: Men and Rape, on Thu. Mar. 1 at 12 p.m. in Rm 102 of the Law School.

JEN AND VAL

HAPPY BIRTHDAY to my Pegram Buddies!!! Love Y'all!!! — J.

Liz, Vickie, Derek, And! — Thanks for picking me up and taking me to dinner. My first legal drink was great because of y'all! Love to my best friends! Liz Sexy.

LIFE IS A...

CABARET! Hoof-N-Horn members are invited to Cabaret Night this Fri. night, Mar. 2, at 9 p.m. in Hoof-N-Horn's own Fried Thir. You can sing, dance, act, or just watch! Performers call Jen N. at 684-1488 for details.

Camping for UNC

Please attend the open forum on tent policy. Tonight 6 p.m. 136 SocSci. Policy for UNC will be decided on.

TOMMY JEFFREY P

Hey Sweetie. Happy 21st you teddy bear you. You're just THE man of my dreams. You'll get your "PRESENT" later tonight, sexy! Love Joanne Adassa.

Kittcock-Son — I wouldn't miss Monday lunch for anything! Sorry I was late. (Yuck) Muffinhead.

RIDE TO DC?

Desperately seeking a ride to DC this weekend, Mar. 2-4. Will gladly share expenses! Call Annette, 684-1826.

THE CHRONICLE CLASSIFIEDS INFORMATION

BASIC RATES

$3.00 (per day) for the first 15 words or less.
10c (per day) for each additional word.

SPECIAL FEATURES

(Combinations accepted.)

$1.00 extra per day for All Bold Words.

$1.50 extra per day for a Bold Heading (maximum 15 spaces).

$2.00 extra per day for a Boxed Ad.

DEADLINE

1 business day prior to publication by 12:00 Noon.

PAYMENT

Prepayment is required.
Cash, check or Duke IR accepted.
(We cannot make change for cash payments.)

24-HOUR DROP-OFF LOCATION

3rd floor Flowers Building (near Duke Chapel) where classifieds forms are available.

OR MAIL TO:

Chronicle Classifieds
BOX 4696 Duke Station, Durham, NC 27706.

Call 684-3476 if you have questions about classifieds.
No REFUNDS OR CANCELLATIONS AFTER FIRST INSERTION DEADLINE.

from Raleigh	round trips from
LONDON	$510
AMSTERDAM	558
BERLIN	578
ROME	630
TOKYO	749
CARACAS	350
RIO	860

Taxes not included. Restrictions apply. One way available. Work Study abroad programs. Int'l Student ID. EURAIL PASSES ISSUED ON THE SPOT!

FREE Student Travel Catalog! Council Travel

703 Ninth Street, Suite B2
Durham, NC 27705
919-286-4664

NORTHGATE BARBER SHOP

Full Service Style Shop

Mon.-Fri. 8-5:30

Sat. 8:00-5:00

286-4030

Northgate S/C
Durham

PAID VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR COLD STUDY

Individuals 15 years and older with recently developed cold symptoms or individuals who frequently have colds needed to evaluate a currently available medication. A paid incentive and free office visit if qualified. Call Carolina Allergy and Asthma Consultants at 493-6580, 933-2044 or 881-0309.

If you are a young man or woman, 17 years or older with a serious interest in spreading laughter through the ancient art of Circus clowning, Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Clown College, a nation's first institution of higher learning would like to see you at our Auditions. Wear comfortable clothes, and don't forget your funny bone!

Thu. MARCH 8 • 5:00 PM
DORTON ARENA
N.C. State Fairgrounds
1025 Blue Ridge Rd.

For info. Call:
MEDIA CENTER
1-800-424-3709
or CLOWN COLLEGE
1-800-237-9637

Bush foresees trade, normalized relations with Nicaragua

■ BUSH from page 2

would follow through on that commitment.

Lifting economic sanctions "will be a matter of first consideration," Fitzwater said.

The sanctions, imposed by President Reagan in 1985, prohibit the import of Nicaraguan goods to the U.S. and the export of most products from the U.S. to Nicaragua.

Nicaraguan aircraft are barred from the U.S. and Nicaraguan ships are excluded from American ports.

Margaret Tutwiler, the State Department spokeswoman, said the U.S. would "do any and everything we can" to help Chamorro and her government rebuild the economy of Nicaragua, which has been battered by war, high inflation, high unemployment and the United States embargo.

She said Washington would urge other countries to help Managua.

Bob Dole of Kansas, the Senate Republican leader, said Managua would need "big bucks" from the U.S. because "the Nicaraguan economy is flat on its back."

No one seems to know where the extra money can be found at a time when Congress and the administration also want to provide new aid to Panama, Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Liberals and conservatives agreed that the Contras should return to Nicaraguan society. About 10,000 are in camps in Honduras, subsisting on aid from the U.S.

"The purpose of the Contras was to bring democracy to Central America, particularly Nicaragua," said Rep. Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee. "When Chamorro is sworn into office, there will be no reason for the Contras to continue to exist."

Inauguration day is April 25. American aid to the Contras for food, clothing and medical supplies runs through Feb. 28. Goods bought before that date may be delivered in March or early April.

Fitzwater said the administration had not decided whether to seek additional aid.

Speaker of the House Thomas Foley, said he did not "see any reason for further aid to the Contras," except for some funds to help them return to Nicaragua.

Tutwiler dropped a heavy hint to the rebels.

The Bush administration has always favored "the voluntary repatriation of the Contras back into Nicaragua under safe and democratic conditions," she said. "This election obviously goes a long way toward safe and democratic conditions."

Development gave slightly more than $2 million to Chamorro's coalition, the National Opposition Union.

The agency gave an equal amount to Nicaragua's Supreme Electoral Council, as required by Nicaraguan law.

Henderson shines in Baldwin jazz performance

■ JAZZ from page 4

frey Quartet made a brief but memorable appearance. With Jason Slaton on drums, Michael Howell on bass, Chip Crawford on piano, Henderson on fluegelhorn, and occasionally Jeffrey himself on saxophone, the quintet distinguished itself with an array of sophisticated tunes.

They began with a modern composition by Herbie Hancock, which was noticeably wilder and more potent than any previous selection. The emphasis on the piano along with the softer sounds of the fluegelhorn made for a more complex and resonant sound.

The quartet unleashed itself with more intensity as Henderson's playing became more animated and personalized. On this selection, Henderson's mastery of the horn was undeniable as he implemented numerous sharp scales in a successful attempt to texturize the composition.

The quartet showcased its range of jazz proficiency in its masterful execution of the soulful ballad "A Portrait of Jenny." Henderson's fluegelhorn seemed to narrate the story of this melancholy tune as Howell's bass, with its deep and serious notes, added to the remarkable potency of this selection.

In the last selection of the evening, titled "Gone, Gone, Gone," the ensemble returned to perform its finale with excellent timing and harmony. The ensemble's accomplished harmony and strong rhythm accented this loud piece as did skillful drumwork.

The performance was complemented by the sonorous acoustics of the performance hall, which allowed the rich sound to circulate 360 degrees around the audience.

Playboy bares ACC issue; Brodie calls presidents' meeting

■ PLAYBOY from page 1

$500 and found out in January that she would appear in the magazine.

Clark's photographs were taken in November in a hotel in Winston-Salem.

She added that her friends and family have been very supportive, but that she is "a little apprehensive about the campus reaction."

Lasko is meeting with Brodie, with whom she has a class, today to discuss the issue and declined to comment Monday. Green could not be reached for comment.

Last semester, various campus groups including the Women's Coalition and the Panhellenic Council protested the Playboy issue through a petition which maintained that the "Girls of the ACC" issue is inappropriate and not consistent with Duke's Vision.

Other people supporting the protest were members of the Interfraternity Council, ASDU and Brodie.

Duke's Vision is a residential life program implemented with this year's freshman class to promote social acceptance and tolerance among members of the University community.

Trinity junior Margie Stude, a coordinator for the Women's Center, will be participating in an open campus forum Thursday to discuss the Playboy issue. An unidentified assistant managing editor of Playboy and one of the Duke women featured will also be present at the forum.

Stude would not comment on the matter Monday, however.

Lasko was photographed under the bridge on East Campus, which is a violation of University licensing rules because the photo was used for commercial purposes, Roberson said.

"We've determined to our satisfaction that the picture was taken without our permission," he said.

Elizabeth Norris, a spokesperson for Playboy, said Playboy photographer David Chan did not realize that the area under the bridge is actually on East Campus, but said Playboy would pay the University a $200 location fee.

Roberson said the University would not have allowed Playboy to shoot on campus had they asked permission, but because the photo was taken, the location fee would be accepted.

Norris would not discuss what the women were paid for the photos, but Chan said in a fall interview that the women whose photos were published would be paid on a sliding scale — $100 for clothed photos, $250 for semi-nudes and $500 for nude.

"But they don't do it for the money," Norris said. "It's something they've always wanted to do."

The athletic conference Playboy issues are very popular and sell out almost immediately, she said. Students at the schools think it's exciting, she added.

Reactions from University students were mixed. "In a way it bugs me — we think we're kind of esoteric in that it couldn't happen to us," said Engineering junior Pete Martin.

Engineering junior Dawn Matheson, however, said, "I don't mind it — it shows that you can be a bimbo and be smart, too."

"I don't like it — it's not flattering to the University," said Rebecca Clifton, a Trinity sophomore.

The First Annual Chinese Speech Contest will be held on Saturday, March 3, 1990

10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.
in Lecture Hall 116 Old Chemistry

Program Includes:

Speech Contest
Three levels, with 5 contestants at each level
Presentation of Prizes Reception

Open to the public

Sponsored by: Asian/Pacific Studies Institute and the College of Arts and Sciences, Duke University

Contact Lens Specialty Care

Examination & Treatment Of The Eyes
Contact Lens Problem Solving

Contact Lenses

Hard, soft and oxygen permeable
Contact lenses for astigmatism
Continuous wear contact lenses
Bifocal contact lenses
Tinted soft lenses
Contact lens solutions
Large office inventory
Loaner contact lens program

Optical Center

Designer eyeglasses
Budget eyeglasses
Fashion tints
Invisible bifocals
B & L sunglasses
Emergency services
Eyeglass guarantee

Senior Citizens Courtesy

Academy Eye Associates
OPTOMETRIST, O.D., P.A.

Dr. Henry A. Greene

3115 Academy Road, Durham, North Carolina 27707 433-7456

Dr. Dale D. Stewart

502 South Duke Street, Durham, North Carolina 27701 685-6206

Evening Appointments Available

STOP & SMELL THE FLOWERS!

at

Campus Florist

Choose from a lovely selection of spring flowers and roses.

700 9th Street • 286-5640

Committee finds communication 'gap' in campus race relations

■ REPORT from page 1

cent of blacks and 57.6 percent of whites indicated that "Race relations, while sometimes strained, are no worse at Duke than in American society in general."

The committee also made several recommendations to address future race relations. The recommendations included complaint procedures parallel to those established by the Academic Council to deal with sexual harassment; an in-service training for teaching assistants and University Writing Course instructors on racial sensitivity; and a race relations manual for the faculty regarding "intergroup, interracial, and multi-cultural affairs."

Other recommendations included faculty seminars to discuss the issues of racial and cultural diversity, the endorsement of the present mentor program in which black alumni in the Raleigh-Durham area serve as mentors to incoming freshmen, cultural diversity workshops as part of new student orientation, "coping workshops" and open forums.

Brodie said the recommendations made are all "very sound" and that "the administration is now on the process of addressing each one of them."

University administrators have also created an office for vice president of minority affairs as part of the mechanisms to address complaint procedures on discrimination. The administration is in the process of evaluating candidates for the position.

Dozier was also very pleased with the recommendations made by the committee, especially the "coping seminars" that "will help implement the issues of racism and cultural diversity in the UWC courses, sensitizing incoming freshmen to the problem and its roots."

ASDU President Connie Pearcy, a

Trinity junior, said that "overall, the committee report was very accurate and well-targeted to deal with the conscious and subconscious racism within Duke students."

In terms of ASDU plans for the future on this issue, Trinity sophomore Michael Hester, interaction coordinator, said the Multicultural Task Force will "increase programming on campus for cultural awareness, specifically during freshman orientation and in the dorms."

The committee originated after a black and white relations symposium sponsored by the graduate schools which took place during the fall of 1988. Brodie said that "complaints of discrimination in the classroom by faculty and other students were received" and that there was a great "concern by the administration on the absence of mechanisms to address this type of problem."

The committee was made up of "faculty members and students interested and motivated to contribute to this issue," said Brodie, and that a "racial balance within the staff was established." The final report of the committee was finished this past December and the approval of its recommendations was made at the beginning of February.

According to the committee report, the objective was to "eliminate classroom discrimination at Duke so that the mission and educational goals of the University may be achieved for all students." To achieve this goal the committee would "document allegations of discrimination in the classroom and suggest steps that can be taken by faculty, administration, and students to institutionalize a protective and systematic approach to the problem."

Hundreds line up at Pickens for hepatitis A immunizations

■ SHOTS from page 1

Others can receive the injection at Pickens for a $25 fee, or go directly to the Durham County Health Department where the vaccination is free to the public.

Since being notified that the unidentified food handler at the Pizza Hut had contracted the disease, Pickens has been swamped with both students and residents of Durham. Over 700 vaccinations have been given at Pickens over the weekend.

On Monday, Pickens ran out of the serum after giving an estimated 200 injections beginning at 1:30 p.m. Pickens received its serum supply from the health department, which also ran out of serum by late yesterday afternoon after tallying about 1,300 injections. Pickens may not be able to restock until early Tuesday afternoon, but the health department expects to have another supply of Immuno-Globulin this morning.

Officials at the health department had estimated earlier that only about 1,000 people had been exposed, and are somewhat perplexed at the unusually high number of persons coming in for treatment.

"This is twice the supply we had anticipated needing. People have realistic fears, but we didn't anticipate this," said Irving Hoffman, clinical coordinator of the Durham Health Department.

Neither health center believes that supplying the vaccine will be a problem. "This isn't something we, or many other places have readily stocked, but we can get it," said Jan Kaufman, a Pickens health educator specialist.

While the Pizza Hut employee may have been contagious as early as Feb. 4, customers who ate at the restaurant between that date and Feb. 12 will not benefit from immunization.

Symptoms of hepatitis A include fever, fatigue, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, headache, abdominal pain, dark urine and diarrhea.

No one has been reported as having hepatitis A since the first diagnosis was made, and no one has shown symptoms of infection. Those exposed to the virus may still yet contract it because the incubation period for the virus is three to five weeks, Hoffman said.

Hepatitis A is an inflammation of the liver that is transmitted from oral-fecal contact resulting from poor hygiene.

The disease is usually a mild condition that can resolve itself without medical treatment, although in more severe cases, medical treatment might be necessary.

The Immuno-Globulin injection may not prevent someone from getting the infection, but it can help to minimize the severity of the symptoms. The injection is a sterile solution containing antibodies normally found in the blood.

Trinity junior Jennifer Pinkerton realized she might have been exposed to the virus last Friday after seeing a local newscast. "I wasn't that concerned until a lot of my friends came in... it's not that big of a deal to get the shot, so I thought I ought to," Pinkerton said.

STUDY ABROAD WITH UNC

Year in Lima, Peru
Spanish required - internships possible
Tuition • Fees • Room • Board
$8,247

Fall Semester in Siena, Italy no Italian required
Tuition • Fees • Room • Board
$5,000

Year in Bristol, England
Tuition • Fees • Room • Board
$9,500

Semester or Year in Belgrano, Argentina
Spanish required
Tuition • Fees • Room • Board
Semester $4,400
Year $8,800

Fall Semester in Berlin, Germany minimal language required
Tuition • Fees • Room • Board
$6,400

UNC STUDY ABROAD OFFICE
962-7001

$2.00 Off any haircut with student ID
$12.00 (Regularly $14.00)
with selected designers

STUDIO ONE
HAIR DESIGN

1209 W. Main St.
Across from East Campus
682-0207

Imagine...
Never clean a contact lens again!

Introducing

ACUVUE
(etafilcon A)
Disposable Contact Lenses
Johnson & Johnson
DISPOSABLE LENS SYSTEM

Now available at:

Dr. J. C. Bazemore
Optometrist
918 Broad St., Durham
286-2225
1 block from East Campus

Call for information about
FREE CONTACT LENSES.

湖 HUNAM 南 Gourmet Chinese Restaurant

28 Fast Luncheon specials • Daily Dinner Specials
SALT, OIL or MSG FREE DISHES
Mixed Beverages
Eat-In or Take-Out Orders Welcome

FAST LUNCH INCLUDES:

1. CHOICE OF HOT AND SOUR SOUP/EGG DROP SOUP/WONTON SOUP
2. CHOICE OF FRIED RICE/STEAMED RICE/LO MEIN

1. Chicken Chow Mein	$3.19
2. Shrimp Chow Mein	3.19
3. Cantonese Chicken	3.19
4. Sweet and Sour Chicken	3.19
5. Beef with Green Peppers	3.19
6. Roast Pork with Fresh Chinese Cabbage	3.19
7. Sweet and Sour Pork	3.19
8. Roast Pork Egg Foo Young	3.19
9. Beef Curry	3.19
10. Shrimp with Lobster Sauce	3.99
11. Chicken with Almonds	3.19
12. Pork with Hot Garlic Sauce	3.19
13. Kung Pao Chicken	3.19
14. Beef with Fresh Broccoli	3.19
15. Double-Cooked Pork	3.19
16. Vegetarian's Delight	3.19
17. Moo Goo Gai Pan	3.19
18. Chicken with Fresh Broccoli	3.19
19. Chicken with Cashew Nuts	3.19
20. Shrimp Egg Foo Young	3.19
21. Hunan Chicken	3.19
22. Steamed Chicken with Hot Garlic Sauce	3.19
23. Kung Pao Shrimp	3.19
24. Shrimp with Hot Garlic Sauce	3.19
25. Hunan Shrimp	3.19
26. Chicken Curry	3.19
27. Fried Chicken Wings (10 pieces)	3.19
28. Hunan Pork	3.19

*These items are HOT

Iced Tea or Hot Tea	50 ea.
All Soft Drinks	65 ea.
Egg Roll	80
Bowl of Fried Rice or Steamed rice	50
Bowl of Lo Mein	50

688-2120

Open 7 Days Week • 12 Noon-10 p.m.
910 W. Main St., Durham
(Across from Brightleaf Square)

Sports

Duke bows to Clemson, 65-60, in regular season finale

By KRIS OLSON

The Duke women's basketball team's senior class battled hard to win its final game at Cameron Indoor Stadium. A late second half rally came up short, however, as the Blue Devils fell to Clemson, 65-60.

The Blue Devils finish the regular season with a 15-12 record overall. Their 4-10 record in Atlantic Coast Conference play ties them for sixth place with Georgia Tech.

"It's too bad Leigh [Morgan], Katie [Meier] and Marcy [Peterson] couldn't go out winners," said Duke head coach Debbie Leonard. "We had a lot of opportunities in the last three games, and some real good opportunities against Clemson."

Strong defensive pressure allowed the Blue Devils to stay in a game in which they started slow offensively. They did not score their first hoop until 3:45 was gone in the first half. At that time, however, Clemson had only scored three.

The lead seesawed ten times in the first half. Clemson took its biggest lead of the half when Shanna Howard hit a long jumper from the right side, making the score 17-12 in favor of the Tigers.

Senior guard Katie Meier answered immediately for Duke. Meier beat Clemson's full court pressure and pulled up for a 12-foot jumper. She scored ten of her 15 points in the first half.

DUKE VS. CLEMSON

	MP	FG	3PG	FT	R	A	TO	BS	ST	PF	PTS
Clemson
Brown	15	2-5	0-0	0-0	0	0	0	0	0	0	4
Farmer	24	3-9	0-0	0-1	16	0	5	2	2	4	9
Miller	18	0-1	0-0	1-2	5	0	0	0	0	1	1
Sells	19	3-7	0-1	2-2	7	4	1	0	0	0	8
Boydell	30	2-8	0-1	3-4	4	4	2	0	0	3	6
Matress	21	2-0	0-0	2-2	2	2	1	0	1	1	6
Bryan	26	9-16	0-0	0-0	8	0	1	0	2	4	18
Johnson	27	1-4	0-0	3-4	3	4	0	0	0	4	5
Howard	6	2-4	0-0	0-0	0	0	2	0	0	1	4
Peters	1	0-1	0-0	0-0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
Wilson	11	2-7	0-0	1-3	5	0	0	1	0	2	5
Team
Totals	200	27-71	0-2	11-18	52	14	12	4	5	22	65
Duke
Williams, T	25	2-11	0-0	2-5	9	1	1	0	0	5	6
Peterson	32	1-6	0-0	1-4	7	1	3	0	0	1	3
Krist	27	2-3	0-0	2-4	4	1	1	0	0	5	6
Morgan	38	5-8	2-4	2-2	3	4	3	0	1	4	14
Meier	37	4-12	0-0	7-10	10	1	2	0	0	4	15
McKissick	2	0-0	0-0	0-0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0
McDonald	26	7-15	2-7	0-0	4	2	3	0	1	1	16
McFarland	3	0-0	0-0	0-0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Team
Totals	200	21-55	4-11	14-25	37	10	14	0	2	20	60
Clemson					30	35					65
Duke					28	32					60

Technical Fouls: None. Officials: Morningstar, Stokes, Att. 814.

A pair of Meier free throws and a coast-to-coast drive by Traci Williams gave Duke a four-point cushion at 23-19 with 3:42 to play in the half.

With 34 ticks left on the clock and the score tied at 28, Clemson held the ball for the final shot. Point guard Jackie Matress forced a shot with the 30-second shot clock running down, but she was able to corral the rebound and convert as the buzzer sounded.

Duke had problems keeping Clemson off the glass the entire game. The Tigers outrebounded the Blue Devils 52-37. Twenty-seven of Clemson's rebounds came on the offensive end, where post players like 6-4 center Jackie Farmer (16 rebounds) poured in second-chance points.

"They're just a big team and there's no way we can match up with them," said Leonard. "They just keep bringing big people in and we just don't have the size."

The Tigers utilized their deep, tall bench to its full advantage. The non-starters, four of whom were 5-10 or taller, scored 38 of Clemson's 65 points on the game. The Tigers leading scorer was 6-2 freshman Shandy Bryan, who came off the bench to score 18.

Duke started the second half much like the first half, with cold shooting. The Blue Devils tallied just one point in the first four minutes. The Tigers had opened up a nine-point lead before Leigh Morgan got her final friendly roll from a Cameron rim on a three-pointer from the top of the key.

On the game, Morgan was five-of-eight from the field, including two-of-four from three-point land. Morgan, who finished with 14 points, and Dana McDonald (7-15, 16 points) provided Duke with its outside scoring threat. It was Duke's inability to connect on the normally high-percentage shots that kept them from taking over the game.

"That's been the story this entire semester," said Leonard. "The kids don't understand it. I don't understand it. I guess that's our destiny, to miss easy shots."

Clemson stretched its lead back out to nine points at 52-43 with 7:44 remaining. Duke then held Clemson to two points in the next five minutes of play. Duke's 10-2 run began with a free throw by senior Marcy Peterson, who had seven rebounds in her final home game. Morgan capped the run by hitting both ends of a one-and-one with 2:32 remaining.

Duke started the run with Meier on the bench with four fouls. Monika Kost and Traci Williams also got into foul trouble. Both Kost and Williams fouled out with under a minute to play.

"When our team gets into foul trouble, we're not going to be in good position down the stretch," said Leonard. "We simply don't have the depth."

Clemson made those fouls even more costly by converting its free throws in crunch time. The Tigers nailed

ELIZABETH WYATT / THE CHRONICLE

Marcy Peterson, in her final home game, and Traci Williams battle Clemson inside for a rebound.

seven consecutive foul shots in the final minute to clinch the victory.

The victory lifts the Tigers record in the ACC to 10-4, good for a second place tie with Virginia. They, like Duke, must wait for a coin flip to determine their final seed for the conference tournament. If Duke and Clemson either both win or both lose their respective coin flips, the two squads will square off once again this weekend in Fayetteville in the opening round.

"What we told the team after tonight's game was that at least we are getting the opportunities [to win games]," said Leonard. "Perhaps in the tourney, we'll get these opportunities again against Clemson or Virginia and we'll be able to convert them into the positive."

Najarian, Naslund win croquet title

From staff reports

Seniors Mark Najarian and Rob Naslund teamed up to win the doubles of the Smith College Indoor Invitational on Feb. 10-11. Najarian placed second in singles in the New England Collegiate Croquet Association event.

The doubles team won, 8-6, in the finals. Matches were played with a one-hour time limit. In singles, Najarian reached the finals but fell, 14-13, in sudden death.

The tournament attracted some of the top schools from New England, the hotbed of college croquet. Smith College is the only college with its own court.

Cold weather forced the croquet to be played inside. Special equipment recently developed in Great Britain was used to simulate outdoor play.

Najarian and Naslund are members of Duke's club croquet squad. Najarian played well last year at Smith and was invited back. He brought Naslund, who he taught some of the finer points of game strategy in preparation.

"It's one of the most complicated games," Najarian said. "[The strategy] is what we try to concentrate on."

According to Najarian, a Georgia Tech player called croquet a combination of pool, golf and chess.

The nearest court is in Pinehurst, but Najarian says Treyburn Country Club has plans to build one. That would give the Duke players a home court to play on. For now, they make do with the East Campus soccer fields.

Bike wins U.S. championship: Top-ranked John Bike beat defending national champion Pancho Monreal, 21-4, 20-21, 11-2, in the U.S. Pro Handball Tournament in Chapel Hill last weekend. Bike, seeded second, took home $3,500 while fourth-seeded Monreal won $2,500.

In the consolation match, third-seeded Naty Avarado downed ninth-seeded Richard Valenzuela, 21-11, 21-15 to win $2,000.

In addition, more than 70 amateurs played in five other divisions.

Littleton 40th in Championships: Trinity senior Matt Littleton placed 40th in the Sunfish World Championships earlier this month in Sanford, Florida. Littleton competed in a field of 80 sailors from around the world after finishing 16th in a qualifying race that narrowed the U.S. entrants from 56 to 30.

Littleton competed against people he had "always read about" in sailing publications. All competitors used identical, 14-foot boats with one sail.

Wind conditions set the tone for the race, approximately six miles, on Lake Monroe. Littleton, who sails in Rehoboth Bay, Delaware, found the wind to his liking in the qualifying.

"The winds were really heavy, which were conditions I was used to," Littleton said, adding that the Rehoboth area always has strong winds. "It was fantastic for me."

The World Championships included seven races, and unfortunately for Littleton, the wind died down as the competition went on.

At Duke, he is in the Naval ROTC program and teaches sailing. He was invited to the World Championships after finishing 23rd in the 1988 Sunfish North American Championships.

AP Men's Basketball Poll

(First-place votes in parentheses)

Rank	School	Record	Last Week
1.	Kansas (41)	27-2	2
2.	UNLV (14)	24-4	4
3.	Missouri (5)	25-3	1
4.	Connecticut (1)	24-4	6
5.	Duke (1)	23-5	3
(tie)	Oklahoma	21-4	10
7.	Georgetown	21-4	5
8.	Michigan	20-5	7
9.	Purdue	20-5	9
10.	Syracuse	20-5	11
11.	Georgia Tech	20-5	8
12.	Arkansas	22-4	13
13.	La Salle (2)	25-1	14
14.	Michigan St.	22-5	15
15.	LSU	21-6	12
16.	Oregon St.	21-4	17
17.	Minnesota	19-6	18
18.	Illinois	19-6	19
19.	Xavier, Ohio	23-2	19
20.	Clemson	22-5	23
21.	Louisville	20-7	16
22.	Loyola Marymnt	22-5	22
23.	Arizona	19-6	21
24.	New Mexico St.	23-3	24
25.	Georgia	19-6	NR

Others receiving votes: St. John's 75, Houston 34, E. Tennessee St. 21, SW Missouri St. 12, Virginia 12, Louisiana Tech 10, Ala.-Birmingham 8, Alabama 6, Texas 5, Brigham Young 4, N. Carolina St. 4, Idaho 3, Indiana 2, Memphis St. 2, UC Santa Barbara 2, California 1, Colorado St. 1, Coppin St. 1, Hawaii 1, Holy Cross 1, Ohio St. 1, Penn St. 1, Southern 1.

$118 roundtrip airfares on Northwest Airlines.
It's not just a great price.
It's a great experience.

Only for student American Express® Cardmembers.

Apply for the American Express® Card. Then get ready to take off. In search of adventure, action—or just simply to escape.

American Express and Northwest Airlines have arranged these extraordinary travel privileges on Northwest—exclusively for student Cardmembers:

■ CERTIFICATES VALID FOR THE PURCHASE OF TWO $118 ROUNDTRIP TICKETS—to many of the more than 180 cities in the 48 contiguous United States served by Northwest. Each certificate is good for a six-month period, and they will arrive within six weeks after you receive the Card. Current Cardmembers will automatically receive their $118 certificates by March 15, 1990 provided they are still full time students.*

■ 10% OFF ANY NORTHWEST FLIGHT—with your own personalized discount card, valid through January 1991 on all Northwest and Northwest Airlink flights. (This discount is not applicable to the $118 student certificates and other certificates, promotional or special status airfares.)

■ 2,500 BONUS MILES TOWARDS FREE TRAVEL—when you enroll in Northwest's WorldPerks® Free Travel Program.

AND NOW BECOMING A CARDMEMBER IS AS EASY AS A TELEPHONE CALL. Just pick up the phone, call 1-800-942-AMEX, and talk to us. We'll take your application and begin to process it immediately. (If you have your banking information handy, like your account number and bank address, it will help speed the process.)

Keep in mind that our Automatic Acceptance Program makes it easier for you to become a Cardmember now, as a student, than it will ever be again.

And remember that as a Cardmember you'll enjoy all the exceptional benefits and personal service you would expect from American Express.

So don't miss out on a world of great experiences. Pick up the phone. Apply for the Card. And start packing!

Membership Has Its Privileges®

APPLY TODAY
1-800-942-AMEX

*If you are already a student American Express Cardmember and have a question about this program, please send your written question, a copy of your student ID and class schedule to: American Express, P.O. Box 35029, Attn: Student Marketing, Greensboro, NC 27425. Fare is for roundtrip travel on Northwest Airlines. Tickets must be purchased within 24 hours after making reservations. Fares are nonrefundable and no itinerary changes may be made after purchase. Seats at this fare are limited and may not be available when you call. Travel must originate by certificate expiration date and be completed within 60 days of that date. Travel may not be available between cities to which Northwest does not have published routings. City fuel surcharges not included in fare from Boston ($2.50), Chicago ($5.00), Denver ($2.00) and Florida cities ($2.00). Certain blackout dates and other restrictions may apply. For complete offer details, call 1-800-942-AMEX. ©1990 American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc.

THE AMERICAN EXPRESS® CARD. FOR STUDENTS MORE THAN EVER.